Ford takes steps to prevent defections

By The Associated Press

President Ford's campaign strategists, apparently seeking to prevent any defection of their candidate's delegates to Ronald Reagan's camp, have named nine regional delegate chairmen to keep Ford's delegates in rein.

"We think it is important to maintain good communications with them and this will help us do that," said Rogers C.B. Morton, President Ford's campaign manager, in announcing the appointment of the chairmen.

Morton, however, acknowledged that the main purpose of the chairmen was "to keep the current ones (delegates) in line."

A spokesman for Reagan, meanwhile, said the former California governor would go to Washington state on Friday to seek the 38 delegates to be chosen Saturday.

Reagan supporters in Washington said they were surprised to learn he would campaign there. State Republican Chairman Ross Davis, a backer of Ford, said he had "no idea" whether Ford would go to the state because Reagan planned to be there.

Reagan is to arrive in Washington on Friday from Des Moines, where 36 Iowa delegates will be selected over the weekend, and leave early Saturday for Los Angeles.

Meanwhile, Jimmy Carter, who says he has more than the 1,505 delegates needed to nominate him, returned to his home state of Georgia, after a trip to Dallas and New York City. He was staying at the Sea Island resort.

Carter appeared at a fundraising affair in Dallas after appearing at the Democratic state convention in New York where he received backing from Arizona Rep. Morris Udall.

Udall said he would not actively pursue more delegates and would release any delegate who asked to vote for Carter.

Carter also picked up the support of two other Democrats who had sought the party's presidential nomination.

Sen. Frank Church dropped his presidential candidacy in Carter's favor, and former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris urged his delegates to back Carter.

In Los Angeles, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., tenaciously clinging to his lone challenge to Carter, said Monday that his campaign was "just getting warmed up."

"I don't think we're ready to fold the tent and close the door to the convention," Brown told an airport news conference after returning from the convention in New York City. "We're just getting warmed up."

Morton said the Missouri state convention last Saturday, in which Ford got only one of the 19 at-large delegates, was a setback but not an indication of momentum turning in Reagan's favor.

"I'm perfectly willing to recognize it's going to be close," he said. But he said he was still confident that Ford would get the nomination on the first ballot at the GOP convention starting in Kansas City on Aug. 16.

Morton said Ford needs to pick up only about 150 more delegate votes to win the nomination and he feels sure the President will get these from among the currently uncommitted and yet-to-be named delegates in state conventions.

An Associated Press tally Monday showed Ford with 963 committed delegates, 82 votes ahead of Reagan's 881 votes. There are 255 delegates yet to be selected, with 159 uncommitted. A total of 1,130 are needed to nominate.

Morton said he agreed with the accuracy of The Associated Press delegate poll and said, "I feel confident we are going to be able to maintain that lead."

He said Ford is expected to do well in Minnesota, Connecticut and Delaware conventions and has a 50-50 chance in Iowa and North Dakota. But he conceded Ford trails in Colorado, New Mexico, Utah, Montana and Washington.

In other Republican action Monday, Southern GOP state chairmen asked Ford and Reagan to avoid credentials fights at the national convention. They also asked them to consider choosing a running-mate who would have appeal in the South.

Clark Reed, Mississippi chairman, said the messages were sent after a weekend meeting of the 13-member Association of Southern Republican Chairmen. Contents of the messages were not available. Spokesmen for Reagan and Ford had no immediate comment.

Carter told an airport news conference in Dallas Monday night that the Democratic party got through the primary contests "unscathed, there are no personal or political wounds left." But he noted it would be a "fatal mistake" to be overconfident about the November election.

Carter also said he had several hundred thousand dollars in debts but "I think I will wind up the campaign year without being in debt."

Market robbed at knife point

An armed robber took an undetermined amount of cash at knifepoint at 9:40 p.m. Monday from the Quick Shop on South Main Street.

The youth made Mrs. May lie down on the floor while Mrs. Curtner emptied the contents of the cash register into a brown paper sack, police said.

The robber then ordered Mrs. Curtner to lie down on the floor and fled.

The women described the robber as about 17 years old and very dirty, according to police.

Sen. William J. Cason

Cason favors jobs over environment

State Sen. William J. Cason, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, termed investigations of former Gov. Warren Hearnes as "abusive harassment" and said state environmentalists need to keep a balance when dealing with state industries, during an interview at The Daily Standard office this morning.

Cason, who has been a member of the Missouri Senate for 16 years, also commented on earlier statements that "We've got too many millionaires making critical decisions in state government," by saying:

"The governor particularly makes decisions. It isn't a matter of being a millionaire; it is whether you have worked in the free enterprise system. If you never have worked for a living in your life, never run a business ... if you've never worked at all, you really can't understand the problems of people who work for a living."

In commenting on the Hearnes investigation, Cason said that although the federal government has the right to investigate public officials, "it seems to me there comes the matter of reasonableness of time and space. And, for an investigation such as this to go on for close to four years now, with the convenient leaks to the media, it seems to me that it has been an abuse of power."

When asked if there is anything a governor can do to avoid these types of investigations, Cason said, "It is probably a certainty that someone will come in and investigate, and I don't think anybody objects to that; it is the matter of drawing something out for four years. In the period of a couple of years they ought to know."

Cason had no comment about his opponent for the Democratic nomination, Joseph Teasdale, but when asked about differences between himself and Gov. Christopher S. Bond as candidates, the senator said:

"It is a difference between Gov. Bond and I of education in the state of Missouri, living in the state over half a century and working for a living at all sorts of different levels, whether it's out of union hall or in a grocery store or in my profession, where I had to make a living for myself and my family.

"There is also the matter of experience. I bring to the office of governor about a quarter of a century of experience in Missouri in government at all levels.

Cason also cited his experience a president pro tem of the Missouri Senate and the fact that he had received the vote of all Republican members twice as well as that of every Democratic senator, giving this as an indication of the relationship his administration could have with the Missouri legislators.

"Right now, the Republican leadership cannot even talk to the governor," Cason said. "I know them down there (legislators) and I can talk to them."

When asked about the difficulties that Noranda Aluminum Inc. at New Madird is having with the state over pollution regulations, Cason stated, "It is very important to protect the environment, but not let the environmentalists overstep the fact that we have to eat and we have to have jobs in this state in order to eat.

"It is a matter of keeping things in balance. The environment is to be used. It is at times to be reasonably damaged, because we have to live in it."

Cason is chairman of the Senate committee on the environment and has sponsored several bills for protection of the environment, but he said "You have to save the jobs." Noranda employs about 850, including over 110 from the Sikeston area.

Cason is a native Missourian and grew up in rural Missouri. He worked to help with college expenses at the University of Missouri and then served as a bomber pilot in World War II. After this military service, he entered Law School at the University of Missouri, where he graduated with honors.

He went on to build a successful law practice in Clinton, taking time out to serve on the local school board and win election as prosecuting attorney before entering the State Senate in 1960.

Howe to enter innocent plea as sex problems continue for Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Allan Howe was reported ready to enter an innocent plea at his arraignment on charges of soliciting sex from two Salt Lake police decoy prostitutes as the Utah Democrat promised a response to pressure from congressional colleagues to resign.

Arraignment was set today in Salt Lake City court on a misdemeanor charge. Howe was arrested Saturday night after allegedly offering two police decoys $20 for sex acts.

It was reported an innocent plea would be entered by Howe's attorney, Wayne L. Black, Democratic national committeeman for Utah, and Howe was not expected to appear. Howe has proclaimed his innocence to reporters, claiming he was "set up."

Without mentioning Washington's sex scandals specifically, President Ford said in a speech prepared for a convention of Southern Baptists in Norfolk, Va.: "Public officials have a special responsibility to set a good example for others to follow — in both their public and private conduct."

The President added: "The American people have seen too much abuse of the moral imperatives of honesty and decency ... The American people, particularly our young people, cannot be expected to take pride — or even to participate — in a system of government that is defiled and dishonored ...

"Personal integrity is not too much to ask of public servants. In fact, we should accept nothing less."

Meanwhile, Colleen Gardner said she plans to talk to the U.S. attorney in Washington today about evidence she allegedly has of questionable sexual activities on Capitol Hill.

Mrs. Gardner has said she knows of a sexual rendezvous arranged by a congressman between Elizabeth Ray and Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, and of instances where her former boss, Rep. John Young, D-Tex., pressured her and other staffers to have sex with him.

Miss Ray has told the FBI that her sexual encounter with Gravel was arranged by then-Rep. Kenneth Gray, D-Ill., her one-time boss, who hoped to influence Gravel's position on public works legislation.

Mrs. Gardner also claims she was paid a premium salary and was not asked to do much work so she would be available as a sexual partner for Young, who calls her charges "poppycock."

In another development, House Speaker Carl Albert said he will move to postpone House Democratic Caucus action against Rep. Wayne L. Hays, another figure in the sex scandal, until next Wednesday. "Then we'll dispose of it," Albert said emphatically.

A resolution before the caucus would force Hays to step aside as chairman of the House Administration Committee pending resolution of Miss Ray's charges that Hays kept her on the congressional payroll primarily to provide him with sex.

Hays, recuperating in Ohio after taking an overdose of sleeping pills, already has relinquished his role as head of the House Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee,

Study funds for SeMo port site given approval

BENTON — The Southeast Missouri Regional Port Authority Monday approved an argeement with the Ozark Regional Commission on a funding basis.

The agreement for the funding is for the Ozark Regional Commission to pay 75 per cent of a $20,000 grant and the port authority to pay the other 25 per cent.

This grant is allocated for the planning of a site or sites to be used as a port in the 49-mile area the port authority covers.

It was also agreed that Alan Clark, an ORC commissioner, be invited to the next meeting of the Southeast Missouri Regional Port Authority to be held July 12 in Cape Girardeau.

C.W. Rushing, chairman of the port authority, told the members about Senate hearings to be conducted on the repair or replacement of the lock and dam at Alton, Ill.

He said a letter from American Waterways Association is seeking support for the construction of a new lock and dam as repair of the Alton facilities would take one to three years and disrupt river traffic. The letter also stated that there is presently an 11-hour delay for barges to come through the Alton dam and that the delay is as long as 72 hours during the peak grain season.

The letter also stated repair of the present lock and dam site would delay the river traffic and upon completion would still not satisfy needs.

The port authority agreed to submit a letter in support of a new lock and dam.

In a dirve through area lending institutions for financial support to provide a special fund for paying salary and expenses of a .fulltime port coordinator, treasurer Raymond T. Roth reported support donations by the following institutions: First Federal Savings & Loan; Farmers & Merchants Bank, Cape Mercantile Bank, Farm & Home Savings Association and Colonial Federal Savings, all of Cape Girardeau; Jackson Exchange Bank of Jackson; Bank of Chaffee; Scott City Bank & Trust Co.; Bank of Illmo; Oran State Bank; and Bank of Sikeston, First National Bank and Security Federal Savings & Loan Association of Sikeston.

At the present time, port commission member E. Mike Pfefferkorn of Chaffee is serving as port coordinator.

HEARING-EAR DOGS

If man's best friend can provide eyes for the blind, why not ears for the deaf?

A project to investigate the usefulness of "hearing-ear" dogs was undertaken two years ago by the Minnesota Society for the Prevention of cruelty. Since then six dogs have been trained and placed with deaf persons and the program has gained international recognition.

A hearing- ear dog is drained to listen for every sound its deaf owner cannot hear — a knock on the door, a crying baby, a fire siren or a pan sizzling on the stove. If any abnormal situation arises,the dog immediately attracts its owner's attention and leads him or her to the sound.

The project has been so popular that the Minnesota SPC has been overwhelmed by requests from individuals and agencies, including the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, for assistance in instituting hearing- ear programs elsewhere in the country. For that reason, it recently called on the American Humane Association to take over responsibility for future development of the idea which, says the AHA, promises valuable new hope for the deaf.

TRIAL BY IGNORANCE

The law's idea of what makes for a fair trial has degenerated to the point where only those who are totally ignorant of what is going on in the world are considered qualified to serve as jurors. Fortunately for the operation of the legal system, there seem to be plenty of people like that.

The National Observer reports the case of two members of the American Nazi Party facing trial in Milwaukee for allegedly threatening the occupants of a car driven by a local Jewish leader and breaking the car's windshield. It was expected that as many as 100 people would have to be questioned to find enough jurors and alterates without obvious anti-Nazi prejudices.

Surprisingly, only three of the first 23 prospective jurors were dismissed, and only two of them for cause. The others seemed to know almost nothing about Nazis, past or present, in Milwaukee or anywhere else. As one woman remarked, "I've heard of Nazis, but I don't listen to the news that much."

Nazis certainly have the right to a fair trial, just like anyone else. What is disturbing in this instance, especially because it no longer seems to be the exception but the rule, was the presumption — shared by judge, prosecutor and defense attorney alike — that no intelligent, well-informed person could be trusted to render them a fair judgment based solely on the facts of the offense they were charged with.

TIME ELEMENT CRUCIAL

The energy crisis should not have come as a shock to anyone. As early as the 1950's, the oil industry was accurately predicting the consequences of underdevelopment of domestic energy sources and over-dependence on foreign imports.

This point was graphically made in the reproduction in Newsweek magazine of a 1954 advertisement by a U.S. oil company. It warned that "....there is only one safe way to keep this nation's rate of petroleum production up to any challenge it may have to meet. That's to encourage our domestic oil industry to constantly find and develop new fields in the Western hemisphere, WHERE WE CAN GET AT THEM IF WE NEED THEM."

The foresight of those words has become increasingly evident in recent years, especially during the Arab oil embargo when imports of crude oil dropped from over 32 million barrels in November, 1973 to only 552,000 barrels in February, 1974. Simultaneously, the price of some foreign oil rose to more than 400 percent above 1972 levels. Had we listened to petroleum industry leaders instead of dismissing their admonitions as self-serving, "Project Independence" would have begun years ago, and the effects of unstable foreign energy supplies on the U.S. economy would have been minimized.

According to an American Petroleum Institute spokesman, the United States must speed up the search for offshore oil and natural gas if it is to meet its energy needs until 1985 when alternative sources of energy can become workable options. He notes that oilmen are continuing the hunt for energy onshore, but production from existing onshore fields has peaked and is now on a declining curve. The time element is crucial. If the call for a national energy policy that encourages domestic exploration and development is taken lightly, we may not have another chance. For "...every day's delay in making leases available means a day's delay in finding and producing the energy the nation must have."

UNUSUAL COMPARISON

The cost of energy is going up. It does not matter what form that energy takes--coal, oil, natural gas, nuclear or that indispensable companion of modern civilization, electricity. Electric rates inevitably must continue to rise for a variety of reasons.

First of all, higher fuel costs must be passed on to the final consumer. Some electric companies, for example, must use oil to fire their boilers which costs two, three or four times more than the pre-Arab boycott price of a little over $3 a barrel. Natural gas is scarce and increasingly high-priced, and the cost of coal and nuclear fuel is on the same upward spiral. When higher taxes, expensive new environmental protection equipment, higher construction costs and interest rates, not to mention wage levels for employees, are also taken into consideration, it is hardly any wonder that electric rates are on the rise.

What should not be forgotten in all of this is that, considering its versatility and the immense amount of work that it performs and time that it saves each of us, electricity is still one of the best bargains in the family budget. Some comparative figures provided by one of the nation's major electric companies tells the story. In 1934, at the very bottom of the worst depression in U.S. history, the average kilowatt-hour price of electric energy sold by this company to its residential customers was $4. In 1973, this company sold a kilowatt-hour of service to its residential customers for $2.02--just about half of what it cost in the Great Depression year of 1934. And this was after rate increases of recent years.

Though its price must rise, electric power in the U.S., in terms of its cost and the value of the services it performs, is likely to remain a bargain by any fair comparative standard for a long time to come.

The institution of the family is threatened in many ways these days. So today, more than ever, Americans need to bear in mind that childraising is the responsibility of the family, not of Society in general. In the family, children learn the values by which they live and the nation endures.

When legislators and social commentators talk about a "role for Society" in raising children, citizens should be alert. It is in totalitarian societies that the doctrine makes the child be the care of the state. In America, it is important that authority not be taken from parents.

Mrs. Susan Marschner, former education director of the Heritage Foundation, commented on the danger of federal interference in childraising, saying:

"This pre-school involvement of Society in the parent-child relationship is in its formative stages now. So-called Child and Family Services legislation, pending before Congress, has received wide support. Many programs are already in operation, stragglers left over from the war on poverty. A very active propaganda campaign is underway to sell the idea to the nation. This campaign has two fronts: the home front and the political front."

Mrs. Marschner added: "The home front is fought with propaganda: women's lib and lib-type persuasions that it's demeaning to raise children, and also impoverishing, stultifying, unrewarding; utopian arguments that it's better for children to have the advantages of communal upbringing and professional rearing, to be free from their parents' inadequacies, problems, prejudices, ignorance, and emotions

"The political front generates economic misapprehensions that poverty can be eliminated if the unplanned and presumably unwanted kids of the poor are simply turned over to Uncle Sam so their obviously unhappy mothers can fly to the open arms of the labor market, leaving the children to be systematically improved so they will not be poverty cases themselves. That argument ignores so many facts about human nature and about poverty in America that it barely deserves a response."

The need today is for public policy in support of parents, not laws that erode the authority of parents.

IT'S YOUR TAXES THEY'RE SPENDING...

The Consumer Product Safety Commission has been putting out some helpful information lately. For instance, it was the CPSC which came up with the startling determination that most tub and shower injuries were a result of "slips and falls." The discovery was the result of painstaking research which cost the taxpayer $142,000.

This same project came up with a "cost-effective" way to prevent burns from overheated water--"turn down the temperature on the central water heater."

In another project, the CPSC uncovered some do's and don'ts for using stairways. Researchers found that it was safer to go up stairways than down, safer to walk than run, and safer to wear shoes on heavily waxed stairs rather than socks.

Common knowledge becomes uncommonly expensive when purchased by federal bureaucrats, but so do common objects--like rocks.

The General Services Administration bought five large rocks to dress up the entrance to the Seattle, Washington, federal building. The rocks, which look for all the world like common boulders, are actually the work of sculptor Isamu Noguchi. Though the rocks were available at $5.50 a ton or a total value of about $44 where they were mined, the hard bargainers at GSA purchased the entire collection for just $100,000.

Last but not least, the National Science Foundation funded a project to modernize the old vocational preference tests. At a cost of a half million dollars, NSF helped to develop a computer which will tell college students what they want to be when the grow up.

Why, we can't tell you, for we can't figure out what he's got that everyone seems to like except a lot of teeth and a big smile. He's been beating around the bush since the beginning of his campaign when it comes to the important issues. Carter now realizes that he will soon have to quit straddling the fence and take a stand on these issues. He is hiring some experts to make the proper and popular decisions for him. Again we say that any candidate who doesn't know what he stands for shouldn't even be on the list of candidates. Next time you see Jimmy Carter on the TV tube, just notice how he turns his head and mumbles when asked a controversial question. An open convention in New York is the only hope of the party as we see it.

FOOLISH OUTRAGE

Not long ago, press reports told of a major oil company considering the purchase of a business totally unrelated to energy. The contemplated transaction involved $500 million. Politicians in Congress immediately expressed outrage at the prospect of an oil company diverting $500 million from needed energy development to a nonenergy-related enterprise. Such outrage is untimely and ill-advised.

Diversification is one avenue that many companies, large and small, have followed in a search for more stable profits. Oil companies are no exception. The company in question, like the rest of the oil industry, has been confronted with a punitive political atmosphere. Prudence has compelled its management to consider expanding into less controversial fields than energy. A Wall Street Journal article, summing up some of the problems facing the oil industry, explains this company's action in a very few words: "Isn't Congress about to peel away the depletion allowance, carve away foreign tax credits and make other changes to make the business less profitable? Are there not 3,500 bills pending before Congress that would, in greater or lesser degree, do the same? Isn't the government keeping exploration closed off the Atlantic coast?...And isn't Senator Stevenson's scheme to have the government get into exploration a direct threat to the private oil companies? In short, there's almost nothing the politicians haven't thought of to discourage investment in the oil business."

Congressional outrage over the possibility of an oil company going into the retailing business or some other business is merely another demonstration of political hypocrisy.

"How long have you been driving without a tail light, buddy?" demanded the policeman.

The driver ran to the rear of his car and started to moan. His distress was so great that the officer was moved to ease up on him a bit. "Aw, come on, now," he said, "you don't have to take it so hard. It isn't that serious."

"It isn't?" cried the motorist. "What happened to my boat and trailer?"

BUDGET BUSTER

The item in the typical American family budget that rose the fastest in the last six years was taxes. While the cost of living climbed about 40 per cent in that time, the total tax bill (federal, state and local) increased 65 per cent.

Capitol Hill Bedroom Survey
By JACK ANDERSON
with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON -- The embattled Wayne Hays isn't the only Member of Congress who is dedicated to life, liberty and the pursuit of women.

Since the titillating tales of Elizabeth Ray hit the headlines, we have conducted our own bedroom survey on Capitol Hill. We discovered several women on the congressional payroll who provide both secretarial and sexual service. But most of these affairs are normal office romances between consenting adults.

Some congressmen take their most shapely secretaries with them on junkets to faraway places with strange-sounding names. Rep. John Breaux, D.-La., recently took off for Japan, for example, with a new secretary. We tracked them to Tokyo's Shinmayako Hotel ; he was registered in Room 952, she in Room 954. Both vigorously denied any romance.

A few legislators have used their congressional status to intimidate women into bedding down with them. In some instances, women who work on Capitol Hill have acquiesced rather than risk losing their livelihood.

Women have complained to us that Rep. Bill Clay, D.-Mo., for one, has accosted them at receptions and in bars. One voluptuous Virginia constituent provided us with detailed tapes of how she was seduced by her senator, Harry Byrd Jr., when she went to him for assistance. Both Clay and Byrd denied any improper advances.

Many senators and congressmen have been flattered into believing that they are different from the rest of us, as if the process of election has somehow lifted them above other Americans and has made them less subject to reproach than the people who elect them.

Members of Congress can also become insulated from the world around them. Whenever they wish, they can shut themselves behind thick oaken doors. Their staffs act as buffer between them and unwanted intrusions.

Not only constituents but wives can be held off indefinitely with stories of high-level meetings that allegedly occupied the congressmen's days and delayed their returns home at nights.The rules and customs on Capitol Hill also prohibit one Member from disparaging another in public.

This permissive atmosphere is hospitable to hanky-panky. Women in the Elizabeth Ray mold -- "groupies" who are attracted by political power -- are easily available. The senior solons also have Capitol Hill hideaways convenient for romantic trysts.

Speaker Carl Albert has the key, for example, to the late Speaker Sam Rayburn's old hideaway. It is furnished like a room from the past with antique furniture, including an apparent closet that is really a camouflaged ice box containing liquid refreshments.

The old congressional curmudgeons used to come here for stimulation that might be lacking in a dull debate. As a young congressman, the late Lyndon B. Johnson used to pass out drinks to his seniors. And it was here that the late Harry Truman received notice to hurry to the White House, where he learned that he had succeeded Franklin D. Roosevelt as President.

Inside sources say Albert sometimes has loaned the key to colleagues, who were more interested in romance than history. But after the Elizabeth Ray scandal broke, he hasitly ordered a new lock installed on the door.

For that matter, the Speaker himself has been seen squiring two lovely Oriental girls from his office around town. He showed up with his car to help one of them move to a new apartment. The Speaker assured us, however, that his interest in the girls was strictly fatherly.

Probably the most serious of the sex stories we uncovered was the charge that the staid Sen. Harry Byrd had taken advantage of a pretty constituent. She told us that she had sought the senator's help in locating her husband, who had left her with two children and no support.

She was desperate and emotional, she said, when she approached the senator. He spoke soothingly to her, took her hand and made sexual advances, she alleged. She did not resist, she said, because she felt there was no one else to turn to.

Byrd promised to help her and subsequently invited her to his place at the fashionable Colonnade Spartments. The senator greeted her at the door in his pajamas, she said. Again he wanted sex from her in return for his offer to help with her problem, she alleged. After three more visits, she gave up hope of his assistance and stopped calling on him. People who know the woman, meanwhile, attested to her good character.

"She is totally wrong about the seduction," Sen. Byrd told us. "There wasn't anything at all like that. I do recall her coming to see me. As I recall, only once in the office and then she called me once on the weekend, and I told her to come by the apartment... My conscience is perfectly clear on it."

The atmosphere of power and deference and permissiveness on Capitol Hill encourages congressmen who probably would pursue the flesh anyway. But most Members, in our view, are really no more or less moral than the people who sent them to Congress.

Footnote: Our associates Jack Cloherty and Bob Ownes, who conducted our sex investigation, found more than two dozen senators and congressmen having extra- marital affairs.

THE BIG SLEEP

WASHINGTON— Six months ago all the political experts predicted that the Democratic Convention held in New York in July would be a bloody bullfight and one of the most exciting events in presidential nominating history. At the same time we were told the Republican Convention held in Kansas City in August would be one big yawn as the Republicans went through the boring process of nominating their incumbent President Gerald Ford.

Well, for the first time in history, the experts were wrong, and it now looks as if the Democratic Convention will be the big sleep and the Republican Convention will be the one that produces all the action and entertainment.

This has put a tremendous pressure on all of the networks who have the responsibility of making the Democratic Convention exciting for four days whether it is or not.

This is what probably is going on now at the TV election centers in New York City.

"All right, you guys. It looks like Carter has it in the bag and we've got four days of gavel-to-gavel time to fill. What do we do with it?"

"We could have an interview with Humbert Humphrey explaining where his strategy went wrong."

"Okay, Hubert could fill up one day. What do we do with the other three?"

"We could ask Hubert another question. THat would take care of the second day."

"We can't do two days of Hubert Humphrey. He's not even a candidate. C'mon, guys, think of something to hold the audience."

"This may sound far out, but why don't we do a documentary on Jimmy Carter's peanut farm. We could film how they plant the peanuts in the ground, how they irrigate them, how they're harvested and finally how they go to market. The American people eat peanuts, but they never realize how much work goes into producing them. We could even show the audiences how peanut butter is made."

"How long do you think it should run?"

"We figure with commemtary we could get a tight 90 minutes out of it. We could put David Brinkley on live at the farm and have John Chancellor ask him questions from New York about the peanut business."

"Okay, film it. But what else can we do to hold the audience?"

"I think we should have a unit covering Jerry Brown. It's possible even after Carter gets nominated that Brown will say the Democratic Convention should have a chance to decide on somebody else."

"Good idea. But we still have two and a half days to fill. Let's come on with something that will grab the people."

"What about doing all the nominating speeches for the Democratic candidates of the last 200 years? It would be a great tie-in with the Bicentennial. We could use actors for the early ones,and the real nominating speeches taken from old film."

"That's good. Get someone working on it. What else?"

"What about highlights of last year's Super Bowl?"

"What the hell has that got to do with the Democratic Convention?"

"Nothing, but I just thought the TV audience might enjoy it more than listening to the platform committee report."

"Now listen to me. Anyone can put on an exciting political convention. But it takes real talent to put one on when the issue isn't in doubt. We've got to have some suspense in this thing. If you guys can't come up with something, I'll find somebody who can."

"Why don't we start a 'Stop Jimmy Carter' movement?"

"What do you mean 'we'?"

"The networks. We could get Cronkite, Reasoner, Brinkley and Chancellor to form a committee and announce that for the good of televeision they intend to stop Carter from getting the nomination."

"And how do we do that?"

"We don't cover the first ballot. If no one sees Carter get the nomination on the first ballot, there will have to be a second ballot, and that could change the whole ball game."

"By God, it might work! Get me Cronkite and Reasoner on the phone."

Last of the quadruplets is dead

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The last survivor of quadruplet girls born May 17 to an East St. Louis couple died Monday at St. Louis Children's Hospital of massive internal bleeding.

Angela Meyers and her three sisters were born 3½ months premature and each weighed less than two pounds at birth.

The first of the quads, born to Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Meyers, died 20 hours after birth, the next May 30 and the third June 9.

Meyers, an employe of the St. Clair County highway department, and his wife have six other children, ranging in age from 1 to 14.

New York firm buys Missouri newspapers

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Agreement in principle Monday to acquire three daily newspapers in Springfield, Mo., and Muskogee, Okla., and their broadcast affiliates has been announced by the Gannett Co.

The Springfield newspapers include the 46,000 circulation evening Leader and Press and the 30,000 circulation morning News and the 76,000 circulation Sunday News and Leader.

The Muskogee newspaper is the 23,000 circulation morning and Sunday Phoenix and Times Democrat.

The broadcast properties to be acquired subject to approval by the Federal Communications Commission are radio stations KGBX in Springfield, KHMO in Hannibal, Mo., and KBIX in Muskogee, plus a one-half interest in KYTV Television in Springfield.

The purchase will be for cash, with the price to be announced at the closing later this year.

Agreement in principle involving the same group of properties was announced in August 1973 when the transaction was to involve an exchange of Gannett common stock.

The deal was canceled by mutual consent of the parties because of a sharp stock market decline, Gannett said.

The newspaper acquisitions will bring the newspaper group, the largest numerically in the nation, to 57 dailies in 20 states and on the island of Guam.

The Springfield and Hannibal properties are owned 50 per cent by the Duval family interests and 50 per cent by Oklahoma Press Publishing Co., which also owns the Muskogee properties.

The newspaper and broadcast operations will remain under the direction of the present executives and no major personnel or operations changes are planned, the announcement said.

Shocking tale of a scaredy cat

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I hope someone has a solution to my problem. All winter long our cat sits on our polyester rug from which she picks up a lot of static. She hates to be touched because when we stroke her fur we both get a shock. Is there any remedy?

My husband fixed up a doorbell for the cat by putting a buzzer on the porch with a board propped on it. When the cat steps on the board it buzzes in the house. When her friends come over they also buzz the buzzer. I always look forward to the column as it has helped me so during the years. — WILMA.

DEAR WILMA — I am sure some of our readers with cats will come forth with some suggestions for you. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — I like foam backed place mats for my table since they do not slip around as much as others. But recently I had trouble finding them, so I bought a small plastic tablecloth with a foam backing. With the pinking shears I cut quite a few mats out of one cloth. Out of a 54-inch by 54-inch cloth one can cut 8 to 10 mats. — GRACE.

Ann Landers

Skinny wife may be ill

Dear Ann Landers: This morning you answered the letter to the husband about his too-fat wife who has no will power.

Now, what do you have to say about a wife who is skin and bones? She was fat eight years ago but went on a strict diet and lost 45 pounds -- which was 15 pounds too many. She still thinks of herself as "fat" although she is a rag, a bone, and a hank of hair.

The crazy nut can't decide what to eat. When we go to a restaurant she studies the menu for half an hour. Nothing "looks good." She finds all kinds of excuses for having "just a cup of consomme." The woman just plain hates to eat.

She's a nervous wreck -- afraid she'll gain a pound -- and she's making a wreck out of me. Please give me a better understanding of her problem before I walk out of here. She always reads your column and maybe she'll listen to you. -- Going Mahoola

Dear Mahoo: Your wife should see a doctor immediately. From the symptoms you describe it may be that she is suffering from anorexia nervosa, a common psychological problem among females (rarely males). I hope she listens to me. Her life could be at stake.

Dear Ann Landers: I took care of my father-in-law for three months while he was terminally ill. My nerves were shot.

The doctor suggested I go to a hospital to "rest up" for a couple weeks. My husband and I decided for the same money we could go to a resort.

The first week was wonderful, then we ran into a fisherman buddy and his wife from our home-town. The three of them decided we should take an apartment together. I was against the idea, but went along with it to keep the peace.

The other husband informed me on the first day that I would have to do all the housework and get the meals because his wife was "tired" and on holiday. I said "No," emphatically, and explained that I was "on holiday," too. My husband became upset and gave me the silent treatment for the entire week. In the meantime, I did all the work because the other wife slept until noon and it took her two full hours "to meet the world."

I feel my husband was very disloyal because he didn't stick up for me. Now that we are home he still isn't speaking. What do you suggest?-- Hurt

Dear Hurt: A man who is so immature needs counseling. Since he'd probably refuse to go, I suggest that YOU go, in order to learn how to live with the stubborn ox. Also, you might learn a few things about yourself, such as why you let him (and others) kick you around so shamelessly.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 14-year-old girl who is in love -- no matter what you say. It's just as real as if I were 21. I know it's loe because I can't think of anything but Ron. He's on my mind every minute of the day. I dream about him every night.

Ron loves me, too, I think. At least he loves me in his own way. (That's how he puts it.) He is 15 and I am the first girl he has ever kissed. This is the problem. I can't get him to kiss right. He keeps his lips closed very tight. Any suggestions on how to loosen him up? -- Ape Over Ron

Dear Ape: Sorry, I'm fresh out of advice for 14-year-old girls on how to teach 15-year-old boys how to kiss. Nature is the best teacher of all. When Ron feels like "loosening up," he won't need any lessons, honey.

Lunch rules are changed

CHICAGO, Ill.--The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) today announced an amendment to the regulations governing the National School Lunch Program, which makes several important changes in the operation of the program. They are:

Senior high school students will be allowed to choose less than the complete Type A lunch when participating in the National School Lunch Program. (This change implements a provision of Public Law 94-105 enacted last October.)

Butter and fortified margarine have been eliminated as a separate requirement for school lunches in order to streamline administration and meal planning.

The basic federal commitment to assist schools in providing one lunch per day per child has been clarified. Where an excess number of lunches has been prepared due to fluctuations in the number of participating children, such lunches may be served as "seconds" to eligible children.

To reduce plate waste in the program, the new regulations will require senior high school students to accept a minimum of three of the five items in a Type A lunch. However, the lunch will be priced as a unit. (The five items in a Type A lunch are: meat or meat alternate, two or more fruits and-or vegetables, milk and bread.)

USDA's Food and Nutrition Service published proposed regulations for the school lunch program in the Federal Register of Jan. 30. Numerous comments were received; a changemade to reflect the comments is the provision that schools may serve excess food prepared as a result of fluctuations in the number of children participating in the program.

The final regulations were published in the Federal Register of June 8 and became effective upon publication.

Pork prices trimmed this week

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Following last week's meteoric rise in pork prices, consumers found a decline in the retail price of pork this week, according to the weeking marketbasket survey of the Missouri Farm Bureau.

But beef, which had been generally lower a week ago, rose in price for all but two cuts, the survey of selected food items at 50 grocery markets across the state showed.

A pound of sirloin steak was a dime higher at $1.91 and round steak was up nine cents a pound to $1.51.

T-Bone steak was eight cents higher at $2.10 a pound while arm roast was up two cents and ground beef up a penny at $1.14 and 79 cents a pound respectively.

Only blade roast, dropping a nickel a pound to 84 cents and rib steak, four cents lower at $1.66 a pound, declined in price.

Leading the reductions in pork prices were butt portions of ham, falling 13 cents a pound to $1.11. Shank portions of ham were down three cents to $1.03 a pound and pork steak was two cents lower at $1.37 a pound. Pork Blade Roast remained steady at $1.38 a pound and center cut chops were a penny higher at $1.82.

Chicken was down as whole fryers fell two cents a pound to 52 cents and cut up parts were a penny lower at 59 cents a pound.

Messersmith survives ninth-inning threat from Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Stifling heat and humidity were about to mug another Busch Stadium victim Monday night when Andy Messersmith revived.

The Atlanta Braves pitcher, summoning an unseen reserve, stiffened in the ninth inning and repelled the St. Louis Cardinals 5-2 to end a four-game Braves losing streak.

"I just didn't want to lose the ball game. I'd come too far to foul it up," Messersmith said following a feverish windup to his seven-hit triumph.

"It's been a long road, I'll tell you that," he added of a victory that squared his record at 5-5 for a club with which he signed as a free agent April 10. "I didn't think I'd get back this quick; I really didn't."

Messersmith's conquest, his fifth in six decisions since May 17, was a seemingly foregone conclusion until Reggie Smith and Willie Crawford singled leading off the Cards' ninth.

Hector Cruz obliged the Atlanta pitcher momentarily by lining out to left field, but Mike Tyson proved more stubborn and walked on a 3-2 pitch to load the bases.

Ron Fairly was the next St. Louis batter to face Messersmith in a pinch-hit role and calmly watched two deliveries sail out of the strike zone after taking a called strike.

"First of all I'm not going to let him drill the ball out of the ball park," Messersmith later recalled having said to himself while facing Fairly.

"If he hits it it's going to be my pitch," the alter ego had told the right-hander, who next served a changeup Fairly tapped easily to the mound. "I'm not going to throw him the fast ball."

Messersmith's pitch to Fairly, converted into a forceout at home plate, and a subsequent delivery on which Jerry Mumphrey flied out climaxed a strenuous evening for him.

The possessor of an .067 batting mark, he surprised the Cards with a two-strike bunt scoring Ken Henderson in the second inning.

Four innings later, after the Braves had built their lead to 4-1, he slammed a single up the middle that capped his team's scoring.

St. Louis had only three hits, including Mumphrey's RBI single, until the Cards rookie bunted safely in the eighth and raced home on Bake McBride's two-out single.

"I was turning the ball over a little bit and changing speeds well," said Messersmith, who struck out four and walked three en route to his fifth complete game.

"As hot as it is here it's a good accomplishment," he said. "I was getting shaky. I guess I was giving the fans their money's worth."

Maine, Arizona escape elimination in College World Series at Omaha

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The honor of Eastern baseball has been upheld.

"I don't give a darn what the poll says about us, we proved tonight that we belong here," said Maine Coach John Winkin after his scrappy Black Bears stayed alive in the 30th College World Series.

Maine, 29-8, stopped Washington State 6-3 to survived an elimination round game in the collegiate classic dominated by teams from the West.

Arizona, second ranked to tournament favorite Arizona State, was the night's other victor, thumping Clemson 10-6. The Wildcats' triumph kept alive the possibility of an all Arizona finale.

Arizona State, 64-8, and Eastern Michigan, 45-14 — the only unbeatens left among the six teams — had the night off but clash Tuesday night.

Wednesday night, Arizona goes against Eastern Michigan and Maine battles Arizona State.

"I'll tell you, I've coached 30 years and my teams have won 26 different championships, but this is the biggest victory any of them has ever had," said Winkin.

"We don't have the All-Americans, the .400 hitters or the big draft choices but we keep on battling you. It will be a real honor for us to play No. 1. I'm not saying we're going to win but we've earned our chance."

Winkin, in his second year at Maine after 20 years at Colby College, went on to remind writers that his team came to the tournament least regarded — 10th rated in the final poll of the season — and had to battle five teams in its regional tournament rather than three as did other series qualifiers.

"Maine has now gone farther in the series than any Eastern team since 1964," he added. "And that team was Maine, which finished third."

Traditionally, Eastern teams have been doormats in the series. Since 1964, teams from the regional Maine represents have compiled a record of 6-20 in the series.

Jack Leggett and John Dumont each knocked in a pair of runs and crafty Steve Conley and Barry LaCasse held Washington State, 43-15, to six hits as Maine won its second straight since an opening-round loss to Eastern Michigan.

After Washington State gained a 1-1 tie on an unearned run, the Black Bears rallied for three runs, two coming on Dumont's first home run of the season.

"We've been waiting for him to explode in the series," added Winkin. "He's been hitting the ball hard and all over but not out of the park."

Sophomore Eric Wilkins took the loss although striking out 12.

Arizona again was impressive in scoring its second straight victory since a first-round loss to Arizona State.

"Our hitters carried us today early," said Coach Jerry Kindall. "But then when they (Clemson) started to come back, our fielding steadied us."

Kindall was referring to the fourth inning with Arizona leading 6-4. A strong throw by two-time All-America centerfielder Dave Stegman held a runner at third base and another from rightfielder Pete Van Horne started a rally-killing doubleplay.

Clemson came out of the inning with only one run and it gave the Wildcats some breathing room.

Don Zimmerman knocked in three runs for the Widcats, 53-17, and Van Horne collected two hits including a solo home run. Bruce Ferguson pitched five and two-thirds inning of effective relief to gain the victory.

"I could have been much closer had it not been for the errors (three) and all those walks (nine)," said Clemson Coach Bill Wilhelm.

Fitzmorris wins 8th for K.C.

DETROIT (AP) — Frank MacCormack's major league pitching debut wasn't bad, but the support of his Detroit Tiger teammates was.

With Kansas City, the class of the American League West, in town, MacCormack was in trouble before he threw the first pitch.

The Royals, who seem to do everything well and almost nothing wrong — in direct contrast to the Tigers, beat Detroit 5-2 Monday night to give Al Fitzmorris his eighth victory against just two losses.

Kansas City stole five bases, including a double steal that featured a theft of home, pulled off three doubleplays and pitched out of a couple jams as the Royals raised their victory string to six games.

Detroit, meanwhile, committed three errors in one inning, lost a run when a man didn't slide at the plate and, in general, looked like a good Triple A baseball team.

"We can play pretty well," Royals Manager Whitey Herzog said in a bit of understatement. "We play pretty good baseball."

Tiger Manager Ralph Houk said: "That's why they're in first place. They have power, speed, pitching. They're a good ball club." Then he added: "They don't scare you that much with their bullpen."

How's that?

Tom Hall relieved in the ninth inning with two outs and the bases loaded for Detroit and struck out pinch hitter's Ben Oglivie and Bill Freehan to end the game. Freehan looked at a third strike.

Steve Mingori had relieved Fitzmorris in the seventh and blanked Detroit for 2 1-3 innings. Fitzmorris complained of a pulled muscle beside his right knee. (Herzog said he probably won't miss a turn.)

MacCormack, 0-1, gave up two unearned runs in the fourth and was replaced by Jim Crawford in the seventh after Al Cowans singled, Tom Poquette doubled and Fred Patek doubled them home.

"That kid's got a good arm," Herzog said of MacCormack.

Detroit scored first thanks to Ron LeFlore's speed in the third. He singled, stole second and raced home when catcher Bob Stinson's throw bounced off him into centerfield.

In the K.C. fourth George Brett singled to left and took second as Dan Meyer misplayed the ball. John Mayberry flew to right and Rusty Staub let the ball skip by for another error as a run scored.

Detroit got a run in the seventh when Dan Meyer tripled off Fitzmorris and Staub greeted Mingori with an RBI ground out.

Smokin' Joe must keep cool tonight vs. Foreman

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Smokin' Joe Frazier will try to "cool it" tonight as he tries to save his career in a fight against George Foreman, who humiliated him in Jamaica almost 3½ years ago.

"He's got to keep his cool," said George Benton, who helps Eddie Futch train Frazier. "If he gets hit, he has to back off and say, 'I got hit and can't let it happen again.'"

On Jan. 22, 1973, Frazier, then the heavyweight champion of the world, was knocked down six times and stopped in two rounds by George Foreman, who was a 3½-1 underdog. After each of the first five knockdowns, Frazier got up and "smoked" toward Foreman.

But after the first knockdown, Frazier's attack was "smoke" only. The fire belonged to Foreman.

Should Frazier lose his cool tonight it almost assuredly will be: "Goodby, Joe."

Frazier's career has reached the brink before. After he lost to Muhammad Ali in their second fight Jan. 28, 1974, there was pressure on Frazier to quit, and Futch told him that if he didn't beat Jerry Quarry big he should stop fighting. On June 17, 1974, Frazier stopped Quarry in five rounds, surprising him with jabs, straight lefts and rights, all of which made the famed left hook more potent.

There was pressure again on Frazier to quit after he was stopped following 14 grueling rounds against Ali last Oct. 1. When it came time to reach a decision on whether to quit or not, Joe locked himself in his Philadelphia gym with Futch and Benton and went at it with someone described by Futch "as a good young heavyweight."

Joe impressed Futch enough that the trainer-advisor let it be known that Frazier would fight again for the right kind of purse and the kind of opponent that would earn him another title shot. "He didn't need to work his way up," said Futch, "He's been there. He's a former champion of the world."

The money came up as $1 million — the same purse as Foreman's — and the opponent was Foreman. Tonight comes the challenge — possibly the last of Frazier's fighting life.

Futch left little doubt Monday about what will happen if his fighter-friend loses. "There would be no reason to go on," Futch said. "He will never be just another opponent."

A loss would severely damage Foreman's career, too. But it probably wouldn't end it since George is only 27, five years younger than Frazier.

This First Novel Has A Bizarre Plot

SHADOW 81. By Lucien Nahum. Doubleday. 287 Pages. $7.95.

"Shadow 81" is a first novel by Lucien Nahum, a reporter, pilot and magician, in which the impact of news, the expertise of piloting and the misdirection of magic are skillfully combined in a bizarre plot.

It starts in Vietnam where our lead character is an American fighter pilot on a combat mission behind enemy lines. He's flying a new, ultra-secret plane which must be destroyed rather than fall into enemy hands. When last seen, his plane is apparently hit, going down, and an explosion marks the end.

The scene shifts to Hong Kong where an American buys two ships of special construction and capabilities. Then the tie-in starts with an incredible — yet plausible — mixture of timing, navigation and seamanship.

The scene shifts again to Los Angeles International Airport and the stage is set with a backstage view of airport terminal operations and passenger plane handling.

It all leads to the startling skyjacking of jumbojet Flight 81, bound for Hawaii, by a fighter plane which takes a position right behind the passenger airliner — hence the title. It issues orders by radio and demonstrates its destructive capability with a rocket burst when challenged, leaving little choice for authorities except to comply with the ransom demand of $20 million in gold as the price for the safety of more than 200 passengers and crew and the 747.

New Zealand

New Zealand, composed of the large North Island and South Island and several smaller islands and groups, has an area of 103,736 square miles, about that of the state of Colorado. Abel Janszoon Tasman, a Dutch navigator, was the first known European visitor, in 1642. Capt. James Cook explored the coasts in 1769-70 and British sovereignty was proclaimed in 1840 with organized settlement beginning the same year. The Colony became a Dominion in 1907 and presently is an independent member of the Commonwealth of Nations.

Man responsible for Bill of Rights was a farmer

EDITOR'S NOTE — Two hundred years ago this week, a Virginia farmer named George Mason drew up the model for the Bill of Rights later embodied in the Constitution.

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

George Mason, a farmer not a lawyer, may be the most important man in American law — the man most responsible for developing the document that eventually became our Bill of Rights.

There is no easy explanation for this Virginia planter's obsession with human rights; an obsession that led him to insist on a Declaration of Rights in the Virginia constitution. That declaration — stating that "all power is vested in, and consequently derived from, the people" — was adopted by a Virginia convention on June 12, 1776.

Nobody ever mistreated Mason. He was born rich and died even richer. He came from one of America's finest families, albeit one with a history of rebellion. His great-grandfather had helped start Bacon's Rebellion, the first armed challenge to royal authority in Americnotim in his community, in his state, and at times from a grateful nation. He was not the sort of man who felt that his rights were threatened.

Yet this tidewater gentleman was an emerging nation's greatest civil libertarian. He inspired and fought for the Bill of Rights and all the freedoms that generations of Americans have enjoyed under it.

Mason was born in 1735 on a plantation just a few miles down the Potomac from George Washington's Mount Vernon. His grandfather and great-grandfather had been lawyers trained in London's Middle Temple, and like his father, prosperous tobacco planters.

George's father died in a boating accident when the boy was only 10, but he left a comfortable estate. As principal heir George worked to prepare himself for the management of a large plantation, and his industry and efficiency kept the plantation prosperous at a time when tobacco culture was declining.

The youth was educated at home but benefited from the tutelage of a cousin who was a legal scholar and possessor of one of the finest libraries in the colonies. He steeped himself in the classics of literature and philosophy and the best legal treatises.

Later, as a landowner and speculator, he continued to study law to protect his interests and became a recognzed authority on land law. But he never practiced law. He dedicated himself to management of the plantation, and to his wife and nine children.

Although he was plagued by gout and openly detested public office as an "unjust invasion of my personal liberty," he finally agreed to enter public service, as did so many men of Mason's social standing.

He became a justice of the county court, a trustee of the new town of Alexandria and an officer of the militia. He was a member of the Virginia House of Burgesses, the revolutionary Virginia conventions, the Virginia Committee of Safety, and the Constitutional Convention.

Like most of the Revolutionary leaders, it was the Stamp Act that took Mason beyond the realm of civic duty to patriotic fervor. He began by drafting a plan for the Fairfax County burgesses for circumventing the tax stamps.

When the Stamp Act was repealed, Mason was one of the few Americans wise enough to see that trouble was not over. In a letter to London merchants printed in the Public Ledger in 1766, he warned that "such another experience as the Stamp Act would produce a general revolt in America."

Mason tore into the child-parent analogy of America to England and the second class citizenship it implied. "Is not this a little ridiculous, when applied to three millions of as loyal and useful subjects as any in the British dominions, who have been only contending for their rights?" he asked. "Let our fellow subjects in Great Britain reflect that we are descended from the same stock with themselves, nurtured in the same principle of freedom."

When the unheeding British imposed the Townshend Duties, Mason drew up the Non-Importation Resolves which George Washington introduced to a rump convention sitting in Williamsburg.

Parliament repealed all the Townshend taxes except the one on tea, but Mason wasn't satisfied. A tighter boycott on British imports and a more united front would have won complete victory, he said. And in the spring of '76, he drafted 24 resolutions which were adopted at a special meeting of the Fairfax freeholders to protest British punishment for the Boston Tea Party.

These Fairfax Resolves called for a tight boycott of British goods and a Continental Congress to "plan for the defense and preservation of our common rights."

Pleading the needs of his motherless family (his wife of 23 years recently had died), Mason declined election as Burgess. But he did join the Fairfax Committee of Safety and formed the Fairfax Independent Company of militia.

The unit was commanded by Washington, and its buff and blue uniform which Washington wore to sessions of Congress became the official dress of the American Army.

In a speech proposing annual election of officers for the militia, Mason broached an idea that wasn't new in theory but was daring in application.

"We came equals into this world, and equals shall we go out of it," he said. "All men are by nature born equally free and independent. Every society, all government and every kind of civil compact, therefore, is or ought to be, calculated for the general good and safety of the community.

"In all our associations; in all our agreements, let us never lose sight of this fundamental maxim — that all power was originally lodged in, and consequently is derived from, the people."

When Washington left to command the Continental Army, Mason's neighbors drafted him to fill the vacant seat in the Virginia convention. Crippled by gout, he arrived late and found the delegates already had adopted a resolution urging Congress to declare independence.

The convention also had appointed a committee to write a declaration of rights. As the leading champion of this cause in the colony, Mason was quickly added to the committee and took the lead in writing the declaration.

On June 12, 1776, the convention approved Mason's finished work. This historic charter of human rights became a part of Virginia's first constitution.

The Virginia Declaration of Rights proclaimed in its preamble that a firm delineation and preservation of the rights of citizenship should be "the basis and foundation of government."

It declared that "all men are by nature equally free and independent" and that "all power is vested in, and consequently derived from, the people; that magistrates are their trustees and servants, and at all times amenable to them"

Then Mason spelled out specific rights of free men reaching back to the Magna Carta and beyond to the first democratic philosophy of the ancients — the right to protection of the law, trial by a jury of one's peers, freedom from self-incrimination, freedom of conscience and religion, and for the first time in such concrete terms, freedom of the press.

Soon all 13 American states had adopted similar charters of freedom.

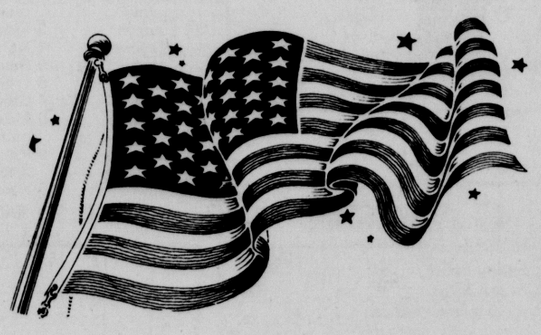
FLY THIS FLAG ON YOUR HOME



COMPLETE KIT
$5.50 Plus Tax
OFFERED AT COST AS A BICENTENNIAL PUBLIC SERVICE

The 50 stars of the United States Flag of today are emblematic of the mighty Nation we have become.

THE BETSY ROSS FLAG The Continental Congress resolved on June 14, 1777, "that the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes alternating red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." No design was authorized but by tradition the Philadelphia seamstress Betsy Ross is presumed to have designed this first flag.

"THEY SIGNED FOR US" — those 56 signers of the Declaration of Independence. They literally "---- mutually pledged to each other our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor." And many suffered terribly at the hands of the British following their daring and nerve in taking part in such a world shaking declaration.

And so let's FLY OUR FLAG on our homes to remember not only our country's birthday but to honor those 56 daring men who signed for us 200 years ago and made it possible for all of us to live in freedom and respect today.

We offer at cost as a Bicentennial Public Service a complete home flag kit — a 3 x 5-foot double-stitched heavy cotton flag — a 6-foot jointed 2-piece staff with top ornament — a heavy mounting bracket with three screws — all in a sturdy 2-piece storage carton with full color flag history folder. Order yours today by mail or by stopping in our office. Use coupon for mail orders.

Hearst trial judge dies

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The death of Oliver J. Carter, the federal judge who presided over the Patricia Hearst bank robbery trial with homespun wit, has left final sentencing of the newspaper heiress in limbo.

Carter, 65, collapsed Monday and died a short time later, apparently of a heart attack.

He had tentatively sentenced Miss Hearst, convicted of armed bank robbery on March 20, to a maximum 35 years in prison. But he ordered at least 90 days of psychiatric evaluation for her before imposing final punishment.

A three-judge federal panel must choose a new jurist to handle Miss Hearst's case. She is now in San Diego for the testing Carter ordered.

Speculation centered on U.S. District Judge Alfonso Zirpoli, who handled a pretrial matter in January while Carter was hospitalized for minor surgery.

Zirpoli is the only judge other than Carter who has been involved in the case. He would still need time to familiarize himself with the eight-week trial record.

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr., who successfully prosecuted Miss Hearst with the argument that she willingly joined the terrorists who had kidnaped her, said "no new trial will be necessary."

Chief defense counsel F. Lee Bailey, in Albuquerque, N.M., on another case, said he would not seek a new trial because of Carter's death. "We will await the new judge's decision regarding sentencing," he said.

Bailey is expected to urge the new judge, as he did Carter, to convert Miss Hearst's sentence to time served and release her on probation.

Miss Hearst, 22, was found guilty of joining her terrorist captors in an April 1974 bank robbery. She had been kidnaped two months earlier and testified at her trial that she was coerced by threat of death to help rob the bak.

When she was arrested on Sept. 18, 1975, Carter immediately revoked her bail and later declared the guilty verdict "well within the evidence."

Carter practiced law in his hometown of Redding in Northern California in the 1930s and represented the area as a state senator in the 1940s. As California Democratic party chairman in 1948, he fashioned President Harry Truman's upset victory in the state, and Truman appointed him to the federal bench in 1950.

He capped his quarter-century on the bench with the Hearst case, the hallmark of his judicial career. After the trial, he turned 65, moved to "senior" status and cut his workload in half.

He is survived by his widow, his mother and a daughter. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

One man mail service to federal judge

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — The case of a Pittsburg, Kan., man charged with infringing on the postal service by delivering first class mail has been taken under consideration by a federal judge.

Robert L. Lundblad, attorney for Robert E. Black, argued Monday before Judge Earl E. O'Connor that the U.S. Constitution gives Congress no power to make the U.S. Postal System a monopoly.

"If a small operator can do it efficiently and cheaper he should be allowed to, and no constitutional authority prevents him from doing it," Lunblad said.

He had moved for a dismissal of the charges against Black, the owner of a private mail service in southeast Kansas, on the basis that the private express statutes, under which Black is charged, are unconstitutional. Black was arraigned on the charges last month.

Lunblad had also said that the U.S. Postal Service may be abridging the First Amendment guarantee of freedom of speech because the price of first class mail was restricting the ability of U.S citizens to communicate.

Free enterprise would lead to more productivity and efficiency and lower prices, Lunblad said, disputing charges that competition would destroy the postal system.

Black's company, Alternate Systems, Inc., started delivering letters in Pittsburg and Frontenac, Kan., March 9 for about half the normal postage rates.

Black was charged with a misdemeanor under the private express statutes which make it illegal to establish a private service to transport mail over regular postal routes or between locations where mail is carried by the postal service.

National identity card is rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal that every American be issued a national identity card or domestic passport apparently is dead after the Federal Advisory Committee on False Identification rejected such a plan as a threat to personal privacy.

The Justice Department task force instead has proposed a series of changes in the law to deal with the problem of criminal use of false identification, illegal immigration and Social Security fraud. One change would make it more difficult to obtain a false birth certificate.

The concept of an internal passport has been viewed by some as the most effective means of cutting down the problem. But Asst. Atty. Gen Richard Thornburgh said Monday: "That type of solution has 1984 overtones" as a threat against personal privacy.

The panel recommended establishment of minimum federal standards to tighten the application procedures for birth certificates and drivers' licenses, and interstate procedures for matching birth and death certificates so dead persons' names cannot be assumed by criminals.

"There are an awful lot of dead people walking around committing crimes," said Thornburgh, whose criminal division sponsored the study."The crime breeder document is the birth record," he said.

Thornburgh put the cost of the false identity phenomenon at $20 billion annually, a figure he said was conservative.

That includes $12 billion a year in federal and local tax burdens for illegal immigrants, $3 billion in check, credit card and other business fraud and $1 billion for drugs smuggled through false identification. Welfare, food stamp and Social Security abuses, and the extra law enforcement expenses necessary to catch fugitives using false identification account for the remainder.

In rejecting calls from some government officials for a national ID, the committee also suggested:

—State laws requiring identity verification before any person arrested can be released on bond;

—Tighter, uniform standards for identification of welfare and Social Security applicants, and the direct deposit of benefit checks to the recipient's bank account, where practical.

—To prevent business crimes, the use of electronic funds transfer systems instead of exchanging papers susceptible to forgery and counterfeiting.

Albert also said the charge against Howe would bring some discredit upon Congress if it is true. However, if it is false, it could boomerang and bring Howe sympathy, Albert said.

The Washington Post reported today that the National Park Service, on orders of then-Director George Hartzog, rigged a power line to provide free electricity to Gray's houseboat, docked at the Columbia Marina owned by the park service.

Special electric lines were run into the boat in 1971, the newspaper said. At that time, Gray was shepherding through Congress legislation to appropriate additional federal money the park service needed to complete construction of its National Visitor Center.

Neither Gray nor Hartzog could be reached for comment on the report.

Mrs. Gardner said Monday night that for two months this year she worked halftime for Young, but was paid a fulltime, $26,000-a-year salary and continued submitting to his sexual advances.

Young has denied the allegation but declined to say whether he had a sexual relationship with her. Joseph Prendergast, his administrative assistant, said Young is not planning to resign.

Gray has denied arranging a sexual encounter between Miss Ray and Gravel. Gravel called the allegations "patently ridiculous" and repeated that he has "no recollection of having met" Miss Ray.

Doctor's Hospital presents massive expansion plan

POPLAR BLUFF— Officials at Doctors Hospital Saturday presented a plan for a multi-million dollar expansion and renovation of the local 227-bed facility to a team of top level executives for the firms that own and manage the hospital.

The team of executives, from the Community Hospital Association, a non-profit corporation that owns Doctors Hospital, and Hospital Affiliates Inc., the health care consulting group that manages the hospital, was in Poplar Bluff for its annual board meeting.

Hospital administrator James Crews presented the group with a plan involving expenditures calculated to run in the vicinity of $6 million to $8 million dollars.

The plan, presented by Crews, by board members Dr. George Ladyman, David Watson, and Don Hamm and others, includes construction of several additions to the existing physical plant at the hospital. The new facilities, according to Crews, in some cases will replace existing, outmoded ones, and in other cases will open new services in the hospital.

They include the construction of a new surgical suite, construction of a new dual coronary care-intensive care unit, a new obstetrical and delivery suite and a new pediatric service.

Other additions planned include a new urology service, renovation and addition of space for up to 40 beds, and addition of up to seven new doctors.

Two new MD's have been contracted and will join the Doctors Hospital-Kneibert Clinic staff next month. They are a family practice specialist and an internist.

Crews said the management firm, Hospital Affiliates, is seeking an orthopedic surgeon, another urologist, a dermatologist, another family practitioner, and an eye, nose and throat specialist.

Ancillary services also will be expanded or relocated if the new plan is approved. Crews said dietary services and central supply will grow. Emergency services will be "significantly expanded" and the laboratory space will be doubled, the hospital administrator said. New, automated equipment will be installed in the lab, Crews said.

One of the most innovative elements of the plan presented to the executives is the additon of a psychiatric service to Doctors Hospital. The area served by the hospital currently has little psychiatric help.

"We are working toward becoming a regional medical center," Crews said, "and in doing so, we have to expand our services to provide those things a medical center does."

Crews said his impression after the meeting with the Hospital Affiliates Inc. and Community Hospital Association officials was the plan had been received favorably.

The administrator added he expects to receive the recommendations of the two groups in the near future.

All hospital expansion, however, will be predicated on approval by the Comprehensive Health Planning Agency or the Health Systems Agency, whichever of the two governmental health agencies is operative when the plans are finalized.

Crews said he expects the planning and approval stage of the plans to be completed within about six months. Construction, he said, would take a minimum of 18 to 24 months.

The representatives in Poplar Bluff for the meeting over the weekend included Hospital Affiliates Inc. President Jack Anderson, Dr. Gene Richardson, president of the Community Hospital Association, Neil Johnson and Jasper Wood, also of the association, and two vice-presidents of Hospital Affiliates Inc., Joseph Hutts and Roger Panther.

Ford takes steps to prevent defections

By The Associated Press

President Ford's campaign strategists, apparently seeking to prevent any defection of their candidate's delegates to Ronald Reagan's camp, have named nine regional delegate chairmen to keep Ford's delegates in rein.

"We think it is important to maintain good communications with them and this will help us do that," said Rogers C.B. Morton, President Ford's campaign manager, in announcing the appointment of the chairmen.

Morton, however, acknowledged that the main purpose of the chairmen was "to keep the current ones (delegates) in line."

A spokesman for Reagan, meanwhile, said the former California governor would go to Washington state on Friday to seek the 38 delegates to be chosen Saturday.

Reagan supporters in Washington said they were surprised to learn he would campaign there. State Republican Chairman Ross Davis, a backer of Ford, said he had "no idea" whether Ford would go to the state because Reagan planned to be there.

Reagan is to arrive in Washington on Friday from Des Moines, where 36 Iowa delegates will be selected over the weekend, and leave early Saturday for Los Angeles.

Meanwhile, Jimmy Carter, who says he has more than the 1,505 delegates needed to nominate him, returned to his home state of Georgia, after a trip to Dallas and New York City. He was staying at the Sea Island resort.

Carter appeared at a fundraising affair in Dallas after appearing at the Democratic state convention in New York where he received backing from Arizona Rep. Morris Udall.

Udall said he would not actively pursue more delegates and would release any delegate who asked to vote for Carter.

Carter also picked up the support of two other Democrats who had sought the party's presidential nomination.

Sen. Frank Church dropped his presidential candidacy in Carter's favor, and former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris urged his delegates to back Carter.

In Los Angeles, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., tenaciously clinging to his lone challenge to Carter, said Monday that his campaign was "just getting warmed up."

"I don't think we're ready to fold the tent and close the door to the convention," Brown told an airport news conference after returning from the convention in New York City. "We're just getting warmed up."

Morton said the Missouri state convention last Saturday, in which Ford got only one of the 19 at-large delegates, was a setback but not an indication of momentum turning in Reagan's favor.

"I'm perfectly willing to recognize it's going to be close," he said. But he said he was still confident that Ford would get the nomination on the first ballot at the GOP convention starting in Kansas City on Aug. 16.

Morton said Ford needs to pick up only about 150 more delegate votes to win the nomination and he feels sure the President will get these from among the currently uncommitted and yet-to-be named delegates in state conventions.

An Associated Press tally Monday showed Ford with 963 committed delegates, 82 votes ahead of Reagan's 881 votes. There are 255 delegates yet to be selected, with 159 uncommitted. A total of 1,130 are needed to nominate.

Morton said he agreed with the accuracy of The Associated Press delegate poll and said, "I feel confident we are going to be able to maintain that lead."

He said Ford is expected to do well in Minnesota, Connecticut and Delaware conventions and has a 50-50 chance in Iowa and North Dakota. But he conceded Ford trails in Colorado, New Mexico, Utah, Montana and Washington.

In other Republican action Monday, Southern GOP state chairmen asked Ford and Reagan to avoid credentials fights at the national convention. They also asked them to consider choosing a running-mate who would have appeal in the South.

Clark Reed, Mississippi chairman, said the messages were sent after a weekend meeting of the 13-member Association of Southern Republican Chairmen. Contents of the messages were not available. Spokesmen for Reagan and Ford had no immediate comment.

Carter told an airport news conference in Dallas Monday night that the Democratic party got through the primary contests "unscathed, there are no personal or political wounds left." But he noted it would be a "fatal mistake" to be overconfident about the November election.

Carter also said he had several hundred thousand dollars in debts but "I think I will wind up the campaign year without being in debt."

Market robbed at knife point

An armed robber took an undetermined amount of cash at knifepoint at 9:40 p.m. Monday from the Quick Shop on South Main Street.

Police said two store clerks, Mrs. Helen May, 841 Matthews Ave., and Mrs. Reva Curtner, 121 Pin Oak Drive, were in the building when a teen-ager walked in, pulled a pocket knife and demanded money from the cash register.

The youth made Mrs. May lie down on the floor while Mrs. Curtner emptied the contents of the cash register into a brown paper sack, police said.

The robber then ordered Mrs. Curtner to lie down on the floor and fled.

The women described the robber as about 17 years old and very dirty, according to police.

Sen. William J. Cason

Cason favors jobs over environment

State Sen. William J. Cason, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, termed investigations of former Gov. Warren Hearnes as "abusive harassment" and said state environmentalists need to keep a balance when dealing with state industries, during an interview at The Daily Standard office this morning.

Cason, who has been a member of the Missouri Senate for 16 years, also commented on earlier statements that "We've got too many millionaires making critical decisions in state government," by saying:

"The governor particularly makes decisions. It isn't a matter of being a millionaire; it is whether you have worked in the free enterprise system. If you never have worked for a living in your life, never run a business ... if you've never worked at all, you really can't understand the problems of people who work for a living."

In commenting on the Hearnes investigation, Cason said that although the federal government has the right to investigate public officials, "it seems to me there comes the matter of reasonableness of time and space. And, for an investigation such as this to go on for close to four years now, with the convenient leaks to the media, it seems to me that it has been an abuse of power."

When asked if there is anything a governor can do to avoid these types of investigations, Cason said, "It is probably a certainty that someone will come in and investigate, and I don't think anybody objects to that; it is the matter of drawing something out for four years. In the period of a couple of years they ought to know."

Cason had no comment about his opponent for the Democratic nomination, Joseph Teasdale, but when asked about differences between himself and Gov. Christopher S. Bond as candidates, the senator said:

"It is a difference between Gov. Bond and I of education in the state of Missouri, living in the state over half a century and working for a living at all sorts of different levels, whether it's out of union hall or in a grocery store or in my profession, where I had to make a living for myself and my family.

"There is also the matter of experience. I bring to the office of governor about a quarter of a century of experience in Missouri in government at all levels.

Cason also cited his experience a president pro tem of the Missouri Senate and the fact that he had received the vote of all Republican members twice as well as that of every Democratic senator, giving this as an indication of the relationship his administration could have with the Missouri legislators.

"Right now, the Republican leadership cannot even talk to the governor," Cason said. "I know them down there (legislators) and I can talk to them."

When asked about the difficulties that Noranda Aluminum Inc. at New Madird is having with the state over pollution regulations, Cason stated, "It is very important to protect the environment, but not let the environmentalists overstep the fact that we have to eat and we have to have jobs in this state in order to eat.

"It is a matter of keeping things in balance. The environment is to be used. It is at times to be reasonably damaged, because we have to live in it."

Cason is chairman of the Senate committee on the environment and has sponsored several bills for protection of the environment, but he said "You have to save the jobs." Noranda employs about 850, including over 110 from the Sikeston area.

Cason is a native Missourian and grew up in rural Missouri. He worked to help with college expenses at the University of Missouri and then served as a bomber pilot in World War II. After this military service, he entered Law School at the University of Missouri, where he graduated with honors.

He went on to build a successful law practice in Clinton, taking time out to serve on the local school board and win election as prosecuting attorney before entering the State Senate in 1960.

Howe to enter innocent plea as sex problems continue for Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Allan Howe was reported ready to enter an innocent plea at his arraignment on charges of soliciting sex from two Salt Lake police decoy prostitutes as the Utah Democrat promised a response to pressure from congressional colleagues to resign.

Arraignment was set today in Salt Lake City court on a misdemeanor charge. Howe was arrested Saturday night after allegedly offering two police decoys $20 for sex acts.

It was reported an innocent plea would be entered by Howe's attorney, Wayne L. Black, Democratic national committeeman for Utah, and Howe was not expected to appear. Howe has proclaimed his innocence to reporters, claiming he was "set up."

Without mentioning Washington's sex scandals specifically, President Ford said in a speech prepared for a convention of Southern Baptists in Norfolk, Va.: "Public officials have a special responsibility to set a good example for others to follow — in both their public and private conduct."

The President added: "The American people have seen too much abuse of the moral imperatives of honesty and decency ... The American people, particularly our young people, cannot be expected to take pride — or even to participate — in a system of government that is defiled and dishonored ...

"Personal integrity is not too much to ask of public servants. In fact, we should accept nothing less."

Meanwhile, Colleen Gardner said she plans to talk to the U.S. attorney in Washington today about evidence she allegedly has of questionable sexual activities on Capitol Hill.

Mrs. Gardner has said she knows of a sexual rendezvous arranged by a congressman between Elizabeth Ray and Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, and of instances where her former boss, Rep. John Young, D-Tex., pressured her and other staffers to have sex with him.

Miss Ray has told the FBI that her sexual encounter with Gravel was arranged by then-Rep. Kenneth Gray, D-Ill., her one-time boss, who hoped to influence Gravel's position on public works legislation.

Mrs. Gardner also claims she was paid a premium salary and was not asked to do much work so she would be available as a sexual partner for Young, who calls her charges "poppycock."

In another development, House Speaker Carl Albert said he will move to postpone House Democratic Caucus action against Rep. Wayne L. Hays, another figure in the sex scandal, until next Wednesday. "Then we'll dispose of it," Albert said emphatically.

A resolution before the caucus would force Hays to step aside as chairman of the House Administration Committee pending resolution of Miss Ray's charges that Hays kept her on the congressional payroll primarily to provide him with sex.

Hays, recuperating in Ohio after taking an overdose of sleeping pills, already has relinquished his role as head of the House Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee,

Study funds for SeMo port site given approval

BENTON — The Southeast Missouri Regional Port Authority Monday approved an argeement with the Ozark Regional Commission on a funding basis.

The agreement for the funding is for the Ozark Regional Commission to pay 75 per cent of a $20,000 grant and the port authority to pay the other 25 per cent.

This grant is allocated for the planning of a site or sites to be used as a port in the 49-mile area the port authority covers.

It was also agreed that Alan Clark, an ORC commissioner, be invited to the next meeting of the Southeast Missouri Regional Port Authority to be held July 12 in Cape Girardeau.

C.W. Rushing, chairman of the port authority, told the members about Senate hearings to be conducted on the repair or replacement of the lock and dam at Alton, Ill.

He said a letter from American Waterways Association is seeking support for the construction of a new lock and dam as repair of the Alton facilities would take one to three years and disrupt river traffic. The letter also stated that there is presently an 11-hour delay for barges to come through the Alton dam and that the delay is as long as 72 hours during the peak grain season.

The letter also stated repair of the present lock and dam site would delay the river traffic and upon completion would still not satisfy needs.

The port authority agreed to submit a letter in support of a new lock and dam.

In a dirve through area lending institutions for financial support to provide a special fund for paying salary and expenses of a fulltime port coordinator, treasurer Raymond T. Roth reported support donations by the following institutions: First Federal Savings & Loan; Farmers & Merchants Bank, Cape Mercantile Bank, Farm & Home Savings Association and Colonial Federal Savings, all of Cape Girardeau; Jackson Exchange Bank of Jackson; Bank of Chaffee; Scott City Bank & Trust Co.; Bank of Illmo; Oran State Bank; and Bank of Sikeston, First National Bank and Security Federal Savings & Loan Association of Sikeston.

At the present time, port commission member E. Mike Pfefferkorn of Chaffee is serving as port coordinator.

HEARING-EAR DOGS

If man's best friend can provide eyes for the blind, why not ears for the deaf?

A project to investigate the usefulness of "hearing-ear" dogs was undertaken two years ago by the Minnesota Society for the Prevention of cruelty. Since then six dogs have been trained and placed with deaf persons and the program has gained international recognition.

A hearing- ear dog is drained to listen for every sound its deaf owner cannot hear — a knock on the door, a crying baby, a fire siren or a pan sizzling on the stove. If any abnormal situation arises,the dog immediately attracts its owner's attention and leads him or her to the sound.

The project has been so popular that the Minnesota SPC has been overwhelmed by requests from individuals and agencies, including the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, for assistance in instituting hearing-ear programs elsewhere in the country. For that reason, it recently called on the American Humane Association to take over responsibility for future development of the idea which, says the AHA, promises valuable new hope for the deaf.

TRIAL BY IGNORANCE

The law's idea of what makes for a fair trial has degenerated to the point where only those who are totally ignorant of what is going on in the world are considered qualified to serve as jurors. Fortunately for the operation of the legal system, there seem to be plenty of people like that.

The National Observer reports the case of two members of the American Nazi Party facing trial in Milwaukee for allegedly threatening the occupants of a car driven by a local Jewish leader and breaking the car's windshield. It was expected that as many as 100 people would have to be questioned to find enough jurors and alterates without obvious anti-Nazi prejudices.

Surprisingly, only three of the first 23 prospective jurors were dismissed, and only two of them for cause. The others seemed to know almost nothing about Nazis, past or present, in Milwaukee or anywhere else. As one woman remarked, "I've heard of Nazis, but I don't listen to the news that much."

Nazis certainly have the right to a fair trial, just like anyone else. What is disturbing in this instance, especially because it no longer seems to be the exception but the rule, was the presumption — shared by judge, prosecutor and defense attorney alike — that no intelligent, well-informed person could be trusted to render them a fair judgment based solely on the facts of the offense they were charged with.

According to the word we get from Texas, Ford campaign chief Rogers C. B. Morton applied additional pressure on former Texas Gov. Asked if Conally would be named to a Cabinet post in the event that President Ford is elected, Morton replied: "I don't know. I don't know whether he ought to or not. I think a little of that depends on Conally. If he's going to be supportive and help in the election this fall, then I think he ought to be considered. But if he's going to go a different route..." Morton let the answer trail off but the implication was clear.

TIME ELEMENT CRUCIAL

The energy crisis should not have come as a shock to anyone. As early as the 1950's, the oil industry was accurately predicting the consequences of underdevelopment of domestic energy sources and over-dependence on foreign imports.

This point was graphically made in the reproduction in Newsweek magazine of a 1954 advertisement by a U.S. oil company. It warned that "....there is only one safe way to keep this nation's rate of petroleum production up to any challenge it may have to meet. That's to encourage our domestic oil industry to constantly find and develop new fields in the Western hemisphere, WHERE WE CAN GET AT THEM IF WE NEED THEM."

The foresight of those words has become increasingly evident in recent years, especially during the Arab oil embargo when imports of crude oil dropped from over 32 million barrels in November, 1973 to only 552,000 barrels in February, 1974. Simultaneously, the price of some foreign oil rose to more than 400 percent above 1972 levels. Had we listened to petroleum industry leaders instead of dismissing their admonitions as self-serving, "Project Independence" would have begun years ago, and the effects of unstable foreign energy supplies on the U.S. economy would have been minimized.

According to an American Petroleum Institute spokesman, the United States must speed up the search for offshore oil and natural gas if it is to meet its energy needs until 1985 when alternative sources of energy can become workable options. He notes that oilmen are continuing the hunt for energy onshore, but production from existing onshore fields has peaked and is now on a declining curve. The time element is crucial. If the call for a national energy policy that encourages domestic exploration and development is taken lightly, we may not have another chance. For "...every day's delay in making leases available means a day's delay in finding and producing the energy the nation must have."

UNUSUAL COMPARISON

The cost of energy is going up. It does not matter what form that energy takes--coal, oil, natural gas, nuclear or that indispensable companion of modern civilization, electricity. Electric rates inevitably must continue to rise for a variety of reasons.

First of all, higher fuel costs must be passed on to the final consumer. Some electric companies, for example, must use oil to fire their boilers which costs two, three or four times more than the pre-Arab boycott price of a little over $3 a barrel. Natural gas is scarce and increasingly high-priced, and the cost of coal and nuclear fuel is on the same upward spiral. When higher taxes, expensive new environmental protection equipment, higher construction costs and interest rates, not to mention wage levels for employees, are also taken into consideration, it is hardly any wonder that electric rates are on the rise.

What should not be forgotten in all of this is that, considering its versatility and the immense amount of work that it performs and time that it saves each of us, electricity is still one of the best bargains in the family budget. Some comparative figures provided by one of the nation's major electric companies tells the story. In 1934, at the very bottom of the worst depression in U.S. history, the average kilowatt-hour price of electric energy sold by this company to its residential customers was $4. In 1973, this company sold a kilowatt-hour of service to its residential customers for $2.02--just about half of what it cost in the Great Depression year of 1934. And this was after rate increases of recent years.

Though its price must rise, electric power in the U.S., in terms of its cost and the value of the services it performs, is likely to remain a bargain by any fair comparative standard for a long time to come.

Martha Mitchell is dead, she died alone, penniless but bravely. Martha was one of the most out-spoken women in Washington. She told it like it was and was usually proven to be correct in her statements criticizing President Nixon and his staff. It could very well be that America is deeply indebted to Martha for bringing scandals of the Nixon administration to the surface. Maybe she will eventually be responsible for changing the corruption in politics to honesty in politics. Those people who disliked Martha are the ones who were dishonest. She was loved and admired by many more millions of Americans who looked forward to her straightforward statements. Martha never pulled a punch, she was a good fighter to the end.

The institution of the family is threatened in many ways these days. So today, more than ever, Americans need to bear in mind that childraising is the responsibility of the family, not of Society in general. In the family, children learn the values by which they live and the nation endures.

When legislators and social commentators talk about a "role for Society" in raising children, citizens should be alert. It is in totalitarian societies that the doctrine makes the child be the care of the state. In America, it is important that authority not be taken from parents.

Mrs. Susan Marschner, former education director of the Heritage Foundation, commented on the danger of federal interference in childraising, saying:

"This pre-school involvement of Society in the parent-child relationship is in its formative stages now. So-called Child and Family Services legislation, pending before Congress, has received wide support. Many programs are already in operation, stragglers left over from the war on poverty. A very active propaganda campaign is underway to sell the idea to the nation. This campaign has two fronts: the home front and the political front."

Mrs. Marschner added: "The home front is fought with propaganda: women's lib and lib-type persuasions that it's demeaning to raise children, and also impoverishing, stultifying, unrewarding; utopian arguments that it's better for children to have the advantages of communal upbringing and professional rearing, to be free from their parents' inadequacies, problems, prejudices, ignorance, and emotions

"The political front generates economic misapprehensions that poverty can be eliminated if the unplanned and presumably unwanted kids of the poor are simply turned over to Uncle Sam so their obviously unhappy mothers can fly to the open arms of the labor market, leaving the children to be systematically improved so they will not be poverty cases themselves. That argument ignores so many facts about human nature and about poverty in America that it barely deserves a response."

The need today is for public policy in support of parents, not laws that erode the authority of parents.

IT'S YOUR TAXES THEY'RE SPENDING...

The Consumer Product Safety Commission has been putting out some helpful information lately. For instance, it was the CPSC which came up with the startling determination that most tub and shower injuries were a result of "slips and falls." The discovery was the result of painstaking research which cost the taxpayer $142,000.

This same project came up with a "cost-effective" way to prevent burns from overheated water--"turn down the temperature on the central water heater."

In another project, the CPSC uncovered some do's and don'ts for using stairways. Researchers found that it was safer to go up stairways than down, safer to walk than run, and safer to wear shoes on heavily waxed stairs rather than socks.

Common knowledge becomes uncommonly expensive when purchased by federal bureaucrats, but so do common objects--like rocks.

The General Services Administration bought five large rocks to dress up the entrance to the Seattle, Washington, federal building. The rocks, which look for all the world like common boulders, are actually the work of sculptor Isamu Noguchi. Though the rocks were available at $5.50 a ton or a total value of about $44 where they were mined, the hard bargainers at GSA purchased the entire collection for just $100,000.

Last but not least, the National Science Foundation funded a project to modernize the old vocational preference tests. At a cost of a half million dollars, NSF helped to develop a computer which will tell college students what they want to be when the grow up.

OPEN CONVENTION ONLY HOPE...

Jimmy Carter keeps rolling right along for the Democratic Presidential nomination and the way things look now he is going to be the nominee for the Democratic Party. Why, we can't tell you, for we can't figure out what he's got that everyone seems to like except a lot of teeth and a big smile. He's been beating around the bush since the beginning of his campaign when it comes to the important issues. Carter now realizes that he will soon have to quit straddling the fence and take a stand on these issues. He is hiring some experts to make the proper and popular decisions for him. Again we say that any candidate who doesn't know what he stands for shouldn't even be on the list of candidates. Next time you see Jimmy Carter on the TV tube, just notice how he turns his head and mumbles when asked a controversial question. An open convention in New York is the only hope of the party as we see it.

FOOLISH OUTRAGE

Not long ago, press reports told of a major oil company considering the purchase of a business totally unrelated to energy. The contemplated transaction involved $500 million. Politicians in Congress immediately expressed outrage at the prospect of an oil company diverting $500 million from needed energy development to a nonenergy-related enterprise. Such outrage is untimely and ill-advised.

Diversification is one avenue that many companies, large and small, have followed in a search for more stable profits. Oil companies are no exception. The company in question, like the rest of the oil industry, has been confronted with a punitive political atmosphere. Prudence has compelled its management to consider expanding into less controversial fields than energy. A Wall Street Journal article, summing up some of the problems facing the oil industry, explains this company's action in a very few words: "Isn't Congress about to peel away the depletion allowance, carve away foreign tax credits and make other changes to make the business less profitable? Are there not 3,500 bills pending before Congress that would, in greater or lesser degree, do the same? Isn't the government keeping exploration closed off the Atlantic coast?...And isn't Senator Stevenson's scheme to have the government get into exploration a direct threat to the private oil companies? In short, there's almost nothing the politicians haven't thought of to discourage investment in the oil business."

Congressional outrage over the possibility of an oil company going into the retailing business or some other business is merely another demonstration of political hypocrisy.

"How long have you been driving without a tail light, buddy?" demanded the policeman.

The driver ran to the rear of his car and started to moan. His distress was so great that the officer was moved to ease up on him a bit. "Aw, come on, now," he said, "you don't have to take it so hard. It isn't that serious."

"It isn't?" cried the motorist. "What happened to my boat and trailer?"

Capitol Hill Bedroom Survey
By JACK ANDERSON
with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON -- The embattled Wayne Hays isn't the only Member of Congress who is dedicated to life, liberty and the pursuit of women.

Since the titillating tales of Elizabeth Ray hit the headlines, we have conducted our own bedroom survey on Capitol Hill. We discovered several women on the congressional payroll who provide both secretarial and sexual service. But most of these affairs are normal office romances between consenting adults.

Some congressmen take their most shapely secretaries with them on junkets to faraway places with strange-sounding names. Rep. John Breaux, D.-La., recently took off for Japan, for example, with a new secretary. We tracked them to Tokyo's Shinmayako Hotel ; he was registered in Room 952, she in Room 954. Both vigorously denied any romance.

A few legislators have used their congressional status to intimidate women into bedding down with them. In some instances, women who work on Capitol Hill have acquiesced rather than risk losing their livelihood.

Women have complained to us that Rep. Bill Clay, D.-Mo., for one, has accosted them at receptions and in bars. One voluptuous Virginia constituent provided us with detailed tapes of how she was seduced by her senator, Harry Byrd Jr., when she went to him for assistance. Both Clay and Byrd denied any improper advances.

Many senators and congressmen have been flattered into believing that they are different from the rest of us, as if the process of election has somehow lifted them above other Americans and has made them less subject to reproach than the people who elect them.

Members of Congress can also become insulated from the world around them. Whenever they wish, they can shut themselves behind thick oaken doors. Their staffs act as buffer between them and unwanted intrusions.

Not only constituents but wives can be held off indefinitely with stories of high-level meetings that allegedly occupied the congressmen's days and delayed their returns home at nights.The rules and customs on Capitol Hill also prohibit one Member from disparaging another in public.

This permissive atmosphere is hospitable to hanky-panky. Women in the Elizabeth Ray mold -- "groupies" who are attracted by political power -- are easily available. The senior solons also have Capitol Hill hideaways convenient for romantic trysts.

Speaker Carl Albert has the key, for example, to the late Speaker Sam Rayburn's old hideaway. It is furnished like a room from the past with antique furniture, including an apparent closet that is really a camouflaged ice box containing liquid refreshments.

The old congressional curmudgeons used to come here for stimulation that might be lacking in a dull debate. As a young congressman, the late Lyndon B. Johnson used to pass out drinks to his seniors. And it was here that the late Harry Truman received notice to hurry to the White House, where he learned that he had succeeded Franklin D. Roosevelt as President.

Inside sources say Albert sometimes has loaned the key to colleagues, who were more interested in romance than history. But after the Elizabeth Ray scandal broke, he hasitly ordered a new lock installed on the door.

For that matter, the Speaker himself has been seen squiring two lovely Oriental girls from his office around town. He showed up with his car to help one of them move to a new apartment. The Speaker assured us, however, that his interest in the girls was strictly fatherly.

Probably the most serious of the sex stories we uncovered was the charge that the staid Sen. Harry Byrd had taken advantage of a pretty constituent. She told us that she had sought the senator's help in locating her husband, who had left her with two children and no support.

She was desperate and emotional, she said, when she approached the senator. He spoke soothingly to her, took her hand and made sexual advances, she alleged. She did not resist, she said, because she felt there was no one else to turn to.

Byrd promised to help her and subsequently invited her to his place at the fashionable Colonnade Spartments. The senator greeted her at the door in his pajamas, she said. Again he wanted sex from her in return for his offer to help with her problem, she alleged. After three more visits, she gave up hope of his assistance and stopped calling on him. People who know the woman, meanwhile, attested to her good character.

"She is totally wrong about the seduction," Sen. Byrd told us. "There wasn't anything at all like that. I do recall her coming to see me. As I recall, only once in the office and then she called me once on the weekend, and I told her to come by the apartment... My conscience is perfectly clear on it."

The atmosphere of power and deference and permissiveness on Capitol Hill encourages congressmen who probably would pursue the flesh anyway. But most Members, in our view, are really no more or less moral than the people who sent them to Congress.

Footnote: Our associates Jack Cloherty and Bob Ownes, who conducted our sex investigation, found more than two dozen senators and congressmen having extra-marital affairs.

THE BIG SLEEP

WASHINGTON— Six months ago all the political experts predicted that the Democratic Convention held in New York in July would be a bloody bullfight and one of the most exciting events in presidential nominating history. At the same time we were told the Republican Convention held in Kansas City in August would be one big yawn as the Republicans went through the boring process of nominating their incumbent President Gerald Ford.

Well, for the first time in history, the experts were wrong, and it now looks as if the Democratic Convention will be the big sleep and the Republican Convention will be the one that produces all the action and entertainment.

This has put a tremendous pressure on all of the networks who have the responsibility of making the Democratic Convention exciting for four days whether it is or not.

This is what probably is going on now at the TV election centers in New York City.

"All right, you guys. It looks like Carter has it in the bag and we've got four days of gavel-to-gavel time to fill. What do we do with it?"

"We could have an interview with Humbert Humphrey explaining where his strategy went wrong."

"Okay, Hubert could fill up one day. What do we do with the other three?"

"We could ask Hubert another question. THat would take care of the second day."

"We can't do two days of Hubert Humphrey. He's not even a candidate. C'mon, guys, think of something to hold the audience."

"This may sound far out, but why don't we do a documentary on Jimmy Carter's peanut farm. We could film how they plant the peanuts in the ground, how they irrigate them, how they're harvested and finally how they go to market. The American people eat peanuts, but they never realize how much work goes into producing them. We could even show the audiences how peanut butter is made."

"How long do you think it should run?"

"We figure with commemtary we could get a tight 90 minutes out of it. We could put David Brinkley on live at the farm and have John Chancellor ask him questions from New York about the peanut business."

"Okay, film it. But what else can we do to hold the audience?"

"I think we should have a unit covering Jerry Brown. It's possible even after Carter gets nominated that Brown will say the Democratic Convention should have a chance to decide on somebody else."

"Good idea. But we still have two and a half days to fill. Let's come on with something that will grab the people."

"What about doing all the nominating speeches for the Democratic candidates of the last 200 years? It would be a great tie-in with the Bicentennial. We could use actors for the early ones,and the real nominating speeches taken from old film."

"That's good. Get someone working on it. What else?"

"What about highlights of last year's Super Bowl?"

"What the hell has that got to do with the Democratic Convention?"

"Nothing, but I just thought the TV audience might enjoy it more than listening to the platform committee report."

"Now listen to me. Anyone can put on an exciting political convention. But it takes real talent to put one on when the issue isn't in doubt. We've got to have some suspense in this thing. If you guys can't come up with something, I'll find somebody who can."

"Why don't we start a 'Stop Jimmy Carter' movement?"

"What do you mean 'we'?"

"The networks. We could get Cronkite, Reasoner, Brinkley and Chancellor to form a committee and announce that for the good of televeision they intend to stop Carter from getting the nomination."

"And how do we do that?"

"We don't cover the first ballot. If no one sees Carter get the nomination on the first ballot, there will have to be a second ballot, and that could change the whole ball game."

"By God, it might work! Get me Cronkite and Reasoner on the phone."

Last of the quadruplets is dead

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The last survivor of quadruplet girls born May 17 to an East St. Louis couple died Monday at St. Louis Children's Hospital of massive internal bleeding.

Angela Meyers and her three sisters were born 3½ months premature and each weighed less than two pounds at birth.

The first of the quads, born to Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Meyers, died 20 hours after birth, the next May 30 and the third June 9.

Meyers, an employe of the St. Clair County highway department, and his wife have six other children, ranging in age from 1 to 14.

New York firm buys Missouri newspapers

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Agreement in principle Monday to acquire three daily newspapers in Springfield, Mo., and Muskogee, Okla., and their broadcast affiliates has been announced by the Gannett Co.

The Springfield newspapers include the 46,000 circulation evening Leader and Press and the 30,000 circulation morning News and the 76,000 circulation Sunday News and Leader.

The Muskogee newspaper is the 23,000 circulation morning and Sunday Phoenix and Times Democrat.

The broadcast properties to be acquired subject to approval by the Federal Communications Commission are radio stations KGBX in Springfield, KHMO in Hannibal, Mo., and KBIX in Muskogee, plus a one-half interest in KYTV Television in Springfield.

The purchase will be for cash, with the price to be announced at the closing later this year.

Agreement in principle involving the same group of properties was announced in August 1973 when the transaction was to involve an exchange of Gannett common stock.

The deal was canceled by mutual consent of the parties because of a sharp stock market decline, Gannett said.

The newspaper acquisitions will bring the newspaper group, the largest numerically in the nation, to 57 dailies in 20 states and on the island of Guam.

The Springfield and Hannibal properties are owned 50 per cent by the Duval family interests and 50 per cent by Oklahoma Press Publishing Co., which also owns the Muskogee properties.

The newspaper and broadcast operations will remain under the direction of the present executives and no major personnel or operations changes are planned, the announcement said.

Polly's Pointers

Shocking tale of a scaredy cat

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I hope someone has a solution to my problem. All winter long our cat sits on our polyester rug from which she picks up a lot of static. She hates to be touched because when we stroke her fur we both get a shock. Is there any remedy?

My husband fixed up a doorbell for the cat by putting a buzzer on the porch with a board propped on it. When the cat steps on the board it buzzes in the house. When her friends come over they also buzz the buzzer. I always look forward to the column as it has helped me so during the years. — WILMA.

DEAR WILMA — I am sure some of our readers with cats will come forth with some suggestions for you. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — I like foam backed place mats for my table since they do not slip around as much as others. But recently I had trouble finding them, so I bought a small plastic tablecloth with a foam backing. With the pinking shears I cut quite a few mats out of one cloth. Out of a 54-inch by 54-inch cloth one can cut 8 to 10 mats. — GRACE.

Janet Johnson is thechapter's alternate city council representative and Paula Guy is corresponding secretary.

Ann Landers

Skinny wife may be ill

Dear Ann Landers: This morning you answered the letter to the husband about his too-fat wife who has no will power.

Now, what do you have to say about a wife who is skin and bones? She was fat eight years ago but went on a strict diet and lost 45 pounds -- which was 15 pounds too many. She still thinks of herself as "fat" although she is a rag, a bone, and a hank of hair.

The crazy nut can't decide what to eat. When we go to a restaurant she studies the menu for half an hour. Nothing "looks good." She finds all kinds of excuses for having "just a cup of consomme." The woman just plain hates to eat.

She's a nervous wreck -- afraid she'll gain a pound -- and she's making a wreck out of me. Please give me a better understanding of her problem before I walk out of here. She always reads your column and maybe she'll listen to you. -- Going Mahoola

Dear Mahoo: Your wife should see a doctor immediately. From the symptoms you describe it may be that she is suffering from anorexia nervosa, a common psychological problem among females (rarely males). I hope she listens to me. Her life could be at stake.

Dear Ann Landers: I took care of my father-in-law for three months while he was terminally ill. My nerves were shot.

The doctor suggested I go to a hospital to "rest up" for a couple weeks. My husband and I decided for the same money we could go to a resort.

The first week was wonderful, then we ran into a fisherman buddy and his wife from our home-town. The three of them decided we should take an apartment together. I was against the idea, but went along with it to keep the peace.

The other husband informed me on the first day that I would have to do all the housework and get the meals because his wife was "tired" and on holiday. I said "No," emphatically, and explained that I was "on holiday," too. My husband became upset and gave me the silent treatment for the entire week. In the meantime, I did all the work because the other wife slept until noon and it took her two full hours "to meet the world."

I feel my husband was very disloyal because he didn't stick up for me. Now that we are home he still isn't speaking. What do you suggest? -- Hurt

Dear Hurt: A man who is so immature needs counseling. Since he'd probably refuse to go, I suggest that YOU go, in order to learn how to live with the stubborn ox. Also, you might learn a few things about yourself, such as why you let him (and others) kick you around so shamelessly.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 14-year-old girl who is in love -- no matter what you say. It's just as real as if I were 21. I know it's loe because I can't think of anything but Ron. He's on my mind every minute of the day. I dream about him every night.

Ron loves me, too, I think. At least he loves me in his own way. (That's how he puts it.) He is 15 and I am the first girl he has ever kissed. This is the problem. I can't get him to kiss right. He keeps his lips closed very tight. Any suggestions on how to loosen him up? -- Ape Over Ron

Dear Ape: Sorry, I'm fresh out of advice for 14-year-old girls on how to teach 15-year-old boys how to kiss. Nature is the best teacher of all. When Ron feels like "loosening up," he won't need any lessons, honey.

Lunch rules are changed

CHICAGO, Ill.--The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) today announced an amendment to the regulations governing the National School Lunch Program, which makes several important changes in the operation of the program. They are:

Senior high school students will be allowed to choose less than the complete Type A lunch when participating in the National School Lunch Program. (This change implements a provision of Public Law 94-105 enacted last October.)

Butter and fortified margarine have been eliminated as a separate requirement for school lunches in order to streamline administration and meal planning.

The basic federal commitment to assist schools in providing one lunch per day per child has been clarified. Where an excess number of lunches has been prepared due to fluctuations in the number of participating children, such lunches may be served as "seconds" to eligible children.

To reduce plate waste in the program, the new regulations will require senior high school students to accept a minimum of three of the five items in a Type A lunch. However, the lunch will be priced as a unit. (The five items in a Type A lunch are: meat or meat alternate, two or more fruits and-or vegetables, milk and bread.)

USDA's Food and Nutrition Service published proposed regulations for the school lunch program in the Federal Register of Jan. 30. Numerous comments were received; a changemade to reflect the comments is the provision that schools may serve excess food prepared as a result of fluctuations in the number of children participating in the program.

The final regulations were published in the Federal Register of June 8 and became effective upon publication.

Pork prices trimmed this week

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Following last week's meteoric rise in pork prices, consumers found a decline in the retail price of pork this week, according to the weeking marketbasket survey of the Missouri Farm Bureau.

But beef, which had been generally lower a week ago, rose in price for all but two cuts, the survey of selected food items at 50 grocery markets across the state showed.

A pound of sirloin steak was a dime higher at $1.91 and round steak was up nine cents a pound to $1.51.

T-Bone steak was eight cents higher at $2.10 a pound while arm roast was up two cents and ground beef up a penny at $1.14 and 79 cents a pound respectively.

Only blade roast, dropping a nickel a pound to 84 cents and rib steak, four cents lower at $1.66 a pound, declined in price.

Leading the reductions in pork prices were butt portions of ham, falling 13 cents a pound to $1.11. Shank portions of ham were down three cents to $1.03 a pound and pork steak was two cents lower at $1.37 a pound. Pork Blade Roast remained steady at $1.38 a pound and center cut chops were a penny higher at $1.82.

Chicken was down as whole fryers fell two cents a pound to 52 cents and cut up parts were a penny lower at 59 cents a pound.

Messersmith survives ninth-inning threat from Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Stifling heat and humidity were about to mug another Busch Stadium victim Monday night when Andy Messersmith revived.

The Atlanta Braves pitcher, summoning an unseen reserve, stiffened in the ninth inning and repelled the St. Louis Cardinals 5-2 to end a four-game Braves losing streak.

"I just didn't want to lose the ball game. I'd come too far to foul it up," Messersmith said following a feverish windup to his seven-hit triumph.

"It's been a long road, I'll tell you that," he added of a victory that squared his record at 5-5 for a club with which he signed as a free agent April 10. "I didn't think I'd get back this quick; I really didn't."

Messersmith's conquest, his fifth in six decisions since May 17, was a seemingly foregone conclusion until Reggie Smith and Willie Crawford singled leading off the Cards' ninth.

Hector Cruz obliged the Atlanta pitcher momentarily by lining out to left field, but Mike Tyson proved more stubborn and walked on a 3-2 pitch to load the bases.

Ron Fairly was the next St. Louis batter to face Messersmith in a pinch-hit role and calmly watched two deliveries sail out of the strike zone after taking a called strike.

"First of all I'm not going to let him drill the ball out of the ball park," Messersmith later recalled having said to himself while facing Fairly.

"If he hits it it's going to be my pitch," the alter ego had told the right-hander, who next served a changeup Fairly tapped easily to the mound. "I'm not going to throw him the fast ball."

Messersmith's pitch to Fairly, converted into a forceout at home plate, and a subsequent delivery on which Jerry Mumphrey flied out climaxed a strenuous evening for him.

The possessor of an .067 batting mark, he surprised the Cards with a two-strike bunt scoring Ken Henderson in the second inning.

Four innings later, after the Braves had built their lead to 4-1, he slammed a single up the middle that capped his team's scoring.

St. Louis had only three hits, including Mumphrey's RBI single, until the Cards rookie bunted safely in the eighth and raced home on Bake McBride's two-out single.

"I was turning the ball over a little bit and changing speeds well," said Messersmith, who struck out four and walked three en route to his fifth complete game.

"As hot as it is here it's a good accomplishment," he said. "I was getting shaky. I guess I was giving the fans their money's worth."

Maine, Arizona escape elimination in College World Series at Omaha

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The honor of Eastern baseball has been upheld.

"I don't give a darn what the poll says about us, we proved tonight that we belong here," said Maine Coach John Winkin after his scrappy Black Bears stayed alive in the 30th College World Series.

Maine, 29-8, stopped Washington State 6-3 to survived an elimination round game in the collegiate classic dominated by teams from the West.

Arizona, second ranked to tournament favorite Arizona State, was the night's other victor, thumping Clemson 10-6. The Wildcats' triumph kept alive the possibility of an all Arizona finale.

Arizona State, 64-8, and Eastern Michigan, 45-14 — the only unbeatens left among the six teams — had the night off but clash Tuesday night.

Wednesday night, Arizona goes against Eastern Michigan and Maine battles Arizona State.

"I'll tell you, I've coached 30 years and my teams have won 26 different championships, but this is the biggest victory any of them has ever had," said Winkin.

"We don't have the All-Americans, the .400 hitters or the big draft choices but we keep on battling you. It will be a real honor for us to play No. 1. I'm not saying we're going to win but we've earned our chance."

Winkin, in his second year at Maine after 20 years at Colby College, went on to remind writers that his team came to the tournament least regarded — 10th rated in the final poll of the season — and had to battle five teams in its regional tournament rather than three as did other series qualifiers.

"Maine has now gone farther in the series than any Eastern team since 1964," he added. "And that team was Maine, which finished third."

Traditionally, Eastern teams have been doormats in the series. Since 1964, teams from the regional Maine represents have compiled a record of 6-20 in the series.

Jack Leggett and John Dumont each knocked in a pair of runs and crafty Steve Conley and Barry LaCasse held Washington State, 43-15, to six hits as Maine won its second straight since an opening-round loss to Eastern Michigan.

After Washington State gained a 1-1 tie on an unearned run, the Black Bears rallied for three runs, two coming on Dumont's first home run of the season.

"We've been waiting for him to explode in the series," added Winkin. "He's been hitting the ball hard and all over but not out of the park."

Sophomore Eric Wilkins took the loss although striking out 12.

Arizona again was impressive in scoring its second straight victory since a first-round loss to Arizona State.

"Our hitters carried us today early," said Coach Jerry Kindall. "But then when they (Clemson) started to come back, our fielding steadied us."

Kindall was referring to the fourth inning with Arizona leading 6-4. A strong throw by two-time All-America centerfielder Dave Stegman held a runner at third base and another from rightfielder Pete Van Horne started a rally-killing doubleplay.

Clemson came out of the inning with only one run and it gave the Wildcats some breathing room.

Don Zimmerman knocked in three runs for the Widcats, 53-17, and Van Horne collected two hits including a solo home run. Bruce Ferguson pitched five and two-thirds inning of effective relief to gain the victory.

"I could have been much closer had it not been for the errors (three) and all those walks (nine)," said Clemson Coach Bill Wilhelm.

Fitzmorris wins 8th for K.C.

DETROIT (AP) — Frank MacCormack's major league pitching debut wasn't bad, but the support of his Detroit Tiger teammates was.

With Kansas City, the class of the American League West, in town, MacCormack was in trouble before he threw the first pitch.

The Royals, who seem to do everything well and almost nothing wrong — in direct contrast to the Tigers, beat Detroit 5-2 Monday night to give Al Fitzmorris his eighth victory against just two losses.

Kansas City stole five bases, including a double steal that featured a theft of home, pulled off three doubleplays and pitched out of a couple jams as the Royals raised their victory string to six games.

Detroit, meanwhile, committed three errors in one inning, lost a run when a man didn't slide at the plate and, in general, looked like a good Triple A baseball team.

"We can play pretty well," Royals Manager Whitey Herzog said in a bit of understatement. "We play pretty good baseball."

Tiger Manager Ralph Houk said: "That's why they're in first place. They have power, speed, pitching. They're a good ball club." Then he added: "They don't scare you that much with their bullpen."

How's that?

Tom Hall relieved in the ninth inning with two outs and the bases loaded for Detroit and struck out pinch hitter's Ben Oglivie and Bill Freehan to end the game. Freehan looked at a third strike.

Steve Mingori had relieved Fitzmorris in the seventh and blanked Detroit for 2 1-3 innings. Fitzmorris complained of a pulled muscle beside his right knee. (Herzog said he probably won't miss a turn.)

MacCormack, 0-1, gave up two unearned runs in the fourth and was replaced by Jim Crawford in the seventh after Al Cowans singled, Tom Poquette doubled and Fred Patek doubled them home.

"That kid's got a good arm," Herzog said of MacCormack.

Detroit scored first thanks to Ron LeFlore's speed in the third. He singled, stole second and raced home when catcher Bob Stinson's throw bounced off him into centerfield.

In the K.C. fourth George Brett singled to left and took second as Dan Meyer misplayed the ball. John Mayberry flew to right and Rusty Staub let the ball skip by for another error as a run scored.

Detroit got a run in the seventh when Dan Meyer tripled off Fitzmorris and Staub greeted Mingori with an RBI ground out.

Smokin' Joe must keep cool tonight vs. Foreman

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Smokin' Joe Frazier will try to "cool it" tonight as he tries to save his career in a fight against George Foreman, who humiliated him in Jamaica almost 3½ years ago.

"He's got to keep his cool," said George Benton, who helps Eddie Futch train Frazier. "If he gets hit, he has to back off and say, 'I got hit and can't let it happen again.'"

On Jan. 22, 1973, Frazier, then the heavyweight champion of the world, was knocked down six times and stopped in two rounds by George Foreman, who was a 3½-1 underdog. After each of the first five knockdowns, Frazier got up and "smoked" toward Foreman.

But after the first knockdown, Frazier's attack was "smoke" only. The fire belonged to Foreman.

Should Frazier lose his cool tonight it almost assuredly will be: "Goodby, Joe."

Frazier's career has reached the brink before. After he lost to Muhammad Ali in their second fight Jan. 28, 1974, there was pressure on Frazier to quit, and Futch told him that if he didn't beat Jerry Quarry big he should stop fighting. On June 17, 1974, Frazier stopped Quarry in five rounds, surprising him with jabs, straight lefts and rights, all of which made the famed left hook more potent.

There was pressure again on Frazier to quit after he was stopped following 14 grueling rounds against Ali last Oct. 1. When it came time to reach a decision on whether to quit or not, Joe locked himself in his Philadelphia gym with Futch and Benton and went at it with someone described by Futch "as a good young heavyweight."

Joe impressed Futch enough that the trainer-advisor let it be known that Frazier would fight again for the right kind of purse and the kind of opponent that would earn him another title shot. "He didn't need to work his way up," said Futch, "He's been there. He's a former champion of the world."

The money came up as $1 million — the same purse as Foreman's — and the opponent was Foreman. Tonight comes the challenge — possibly the last of Frazier's fighting life.

Futch left little doubt Monday about what will happen if his fighter-friend loses. "There would be no reason to go on," Futch said. "He will never be just another opponent."

A loss would severely damage Foreman's career, too. But it probably wouldn't end it since George is only 27, five years younger than Frazier.

This First Novel Has A Bizarre Plot

SHADOW 81. By Lucien Nahum. Doubleday. 287 Pages. $7.95.

"Shadow 81" is a first novel by Lucien Nahum, a reporter, pilot and magician, in which the impact of news, the expertise of piloting and the misdirection of magic are skillfully combined in a bizarre plot.

It starts in Vietnam where our lead character is an American fighter pilot on a combat mission behind enemy lines. He's flying a new, ultra-secret plane which must be destroyed rather than fall into enemy hands. When last seen, his plane is apparently hit, going down, and an explosion marks the end.

The scene shifts to Hong Kong where an American buys two ships of special construction and capabilities. Then the tie-in starts with an incredible — yet plausible — mixture of timing, navigation and seamanship.

The scene shifts again to Los Angeles International Airport and the stage is set with a backstage view of airport terminal operations and passenger plane handling.

It all leads to the startling skyjacking of jumbojet Flight 81, bound for Hawaii, by a fighter plane which takes a position right behind the passenger airliner — hence the title. It issues orders by radio and demonstrates its destructive capability with a rocket burst when challenged, leaving little choice for authorities except to comply with the ransom demand of $20 million in gold as the price for the safety of more than 200 passengers and crew and the 747.

Man responsible for Bill of Rights was a farmer

EDITOR'S NOTE — Two hundred years ago this week, a Virginia farmer named George Mason drew up the model for the Bill of Rights later embodied in the Constitution.

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

George Mason, a farmer not a lawyer, may be the most important man in American law — the man most responsible for developing the document that eventually became our Bill of Rights.

There is no easy explanation for this Virginia planter's obsession with human rights; an obsession that led him to insist on a Declaration of Rights in the Virginia constitution. That declaration — stating that "all power is vested in, and consequently derived from, the people" — was adopted by a Virginia convention on June 12, 1776.

Nobody ever mistreated Mason. He was born rich and died even richer. He came from one of America's finest families, albeit one with a history of rebellion. His great-grandfather had helped start Bacon's Rebellion, the first armed challenge to royal authority in Americnotim in his community, in his state, and at times from a grateful nation. He was not the sort of man who felt that his rights were threatened.

Yet this tidewater gentleman was an emerging nation's greatest civil libertarian. He inspired and fought for the Bill of Rights and all the freedoms that generations of Americans have enjoyed under it.

Mason was born in 1735 on a plantation just a few miles down the Potomac from George Washington's Mount Vernon. His grandfather and great-grandfather had been lawyers trained in London's Middle Temple, and like his father, prosperous tobacco planters.

George's father died in a boating accident when the boy was only 10, but he left a comfortable estate. As principal heir George worked to prepare himself for the management of a large plantation, and his industry and efficiency kept the plantation prosperous at a time when tobacco culture was declining.

The youth was educated at home but benefited from the tutelage of a cousin who was a legal scholar and possessor of one of the finest libraries in the colonies. He steeped himself in the classics of literature and philosophy and the best legal treatises.

Later, as a landowner and speculator, he continued to study law to protect his interests and became a recognzed authority on land law. But he never practiced law. He dedicated himself to management of the plantation, and to his wife and nine children.

Although he was plagued by gout and openly detested public office as an "unjust invasion of my personal liberty," he finally agreed to enter public service, as did so many men of Mason's social standing.

He became a justice of the county court, a trustee of the new town of Alexandria and an officer of the militia. He was a member of the Virginia House of Burgesses, the revolutionary Virginia conventions, the Virginia Committee of Safety, and the Constitutional Convention.

Like most of the Revolutionary leaders, it was the Stamp Act that took Mason beyond the realm of civic duty to patriotic fervor. He began by drafting a plan for the Fairfax County burgesses for circumventing the tax stamps.

When the Stamp Act was repealed, Mason was one of the few Americans wise enough to see that trouble was not over. In a letter to London merchants printed in the Public Ledger in 1766, he warned that "such another experience as the Stamp Act would produce a general revolt in America."

Mason tore into the child-parent analogy of America to England and the second class citizenship it implied. "Is not this a little ridiculous, when applied to three millions of as loyal and useful subjects as any in the British dominions, who have been only contending for their rights?" he asked. "Let our fellow subjects in Great Britain reflect that we are descended from the same stock with themselves, nurtured in the same principle of freedom."

When the unheeding British imposed the Townshend Duties, Mason drew up the Non-Importation Resolves which George Washington introduced to a rump convention sitting in Williamsburg.

Parliament repealed all the Townshend taxes except the one on tea, but Mason wasn't satisfied. A tighter boycott on British imports and a more united front would have won complete victory, he said. And in the spring of '76, he drafted 24 resolutions which were adopted at a special meeting of the Fairfax freeholders to protest British punishment for the Boston Tea Party.

These Fairfax Resolves called for a tight boycott of British goods and a Continental Congress to "plan for the defense and preservation of our common rights."

Pleading the needs of his motherless family (his wife of 23 years recently had died), Mason declined election as Burgess. But he did join the Fairfax Committee of Safety and formed the Fairfax Independent Company of militia.

The unit was commanded by Washington, and its buff and blue uniform which Washington wore to sessions of Congress became the official dress of the American Army.

In a speech proposing annual election of officers for the militia, Mason broached an idea that wasn't new in theory but was daring in application.

"We came equals into this world, and equals shall we go out of it," he said. "All men are by nature born equally free and independent. Every society, all government and every kind of civil compact, therefore, is or ought to be, calculated for the general good and safety of the community.

"In all our associations; in all our agreements, let us never lose sight of this fundamental maxim — that all power was originally lodged in, and consequently is derived from, the people."

When Washington left to command the Continental Army, Mason's neighbors drafted him to fill the vacant seat in the Virginia convention. Crippled by gout, he arrived late and found the delegates already had adopted a resolution urging Congress to declare independence.

The convention also had appointed a committee to write a declaration of rights. As the leading champion of this cause in the colony, Mason was quickly added to the committee and took the lead in writing the declaration.

On June 12, 1776, the convention approved Mason's finished work. This historic charter of human rights became a part of Virginia's first constitution.

The Virginia Declaration of Rights proclaimed in its preamble that a firm delineation and preservation of the rights of citizenship should be "the basis and foundation of government."

It declared that "all men are by nature equally free and independent" and that "all power is vested in, and consequently derived from, the people; that magistrates are their trustees and servants, and at all times amenable to them"

Then Mason spelled out specific rights of free men reaching back to the Magna Carta and beyond to the first democratic philosophy of the ancients — the right to protection of the law, trial by a jury of one's peers, freedom from self-incrimination, freedom of conscience and religion, and for the first time in such concrete terms, freedom of the press.

Soon all 13 American states had adopted similar charters of freedom.

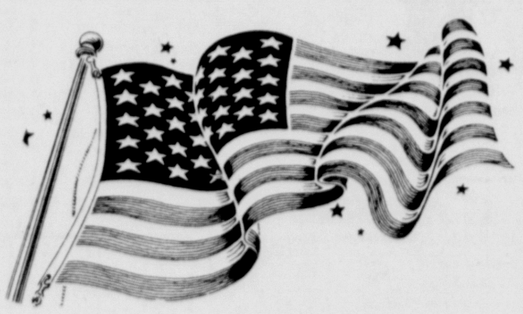
FLY THIS FLAG ON YOUR HOME



COMPLETE KIT $5.50 Plus Tax

OFFERED AT COST AS A BICENTENNIAL PUBLIC SERVICE

The 50 stars of the United States Flag of today are emblematic of the mighty Nation we have become.

THE BETSY ROSS FLAG: The Continental Congress resolved on June 14, 1777, "that the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes alternating red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." No design was authorized but by tradition the Philadelphia seamstress Betsy Ross is presumed to have designed this first flag.

"THEY SIGNED FOR US" — those 56 signers of the Declaration of Independence. They literally "— — — mutually pledged to each other our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor." And many suffered terribly at the hands of the British following their daring and nerve in taking part in such a world shaking declaration.

And so let's FLY OUR FLAG on our homes to remember not only our country's birthday but to honor those 56 daring men who signed for us 200 years ago and made it possible for all of us to live in freedom and respect today.

We offer at cost as a Bicentennial Public Service a complete home flag kit — a 3 x 5-foot double-stitched heavy cotton flag — a 6-foot jointed 2-piece staff with top ornament — a heavy mounting bracket with three screws — all in a sturdy 2-piece storage carton with full color flag history folder. Order yours today by mail or by stopping in our office. Use coupon for mail orders.

Hearst trial judge dies

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The death of Oliver J. Carter, the federal judge who presided over the Patricia Hearst bank robbery trial with homespun wit, has left final sentencing of the newspaper heiress in limbo.

Carter, 65, collapsed Monday and died a short time later, apparently of a heart attack.

He had tentatively sentenced Miss Hearst, convicted of armed bank robbery on March 20, to a maximum 35 years in prison. But he ordered at least 90 days of psychiatric evaluation for her before imposing final punishment.

A three-judge federal panel must choose a new jurist to handle Miss Hearst's case. She is now in San Diego for the testing Carter ordered.

Speculation centered on U.S. District Judge Alfonso Zirpoli, who handled a pretrial matter in January while Carter was hospitalized for minor surgery.

Zirpoli is the only judge other than Carter who has been involved in the case. He would still need time to familiarize himself with the eight-week trial record.

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr., who successfully prosecuted Miss Hearst with the argument that she willingly joined the terrorists who had kidnaped her, said "no new trial will be necessary."

Chief defense counsel F. Lee Bailey, in Albuquerque, N.M., on another case, said he would not seek a new trial because of Carter's death. "We will await the new judge's decision regarding sentencing," he said.

Bailey is expected to urge the new judge, as he did Carter, to convert Miss Hearst's sentence to time served and release her on probation.

Miss Hearst, 22, was found guilty of joining her terrorist captors in an April 1974 bank robbery. She had been kidnaped two months earlier and testified at her trial that she was coerced by threat of death to help rob the bak.

When she was arrested on Sept. 18, 1975, Carter immediately revoked her bail and later declared the guilty verdict "well within the evidence."

Carter practiced law in his hometown of Redding in Northern California in the 1930s and represented the area as a state senator in the 1940s. As California Democratic party chairman in 1948, he fashioned President Harry Truman's upset victory in the state, and Truman appointed him to the federal bench in 1950.

He capped his quarter-century on the bench with the Hearst case, the hallmark of his judicial career. After the trial, he turned 65, moved to "senior" status and cut his workload in half.

He is survived by his widow, his mother and a daughter. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

National identity card is rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal that every American be issued a national identity card or domestic passport apparently is dead after the Federal Advisory Committee on False Identification rejected such a plan as a threat to personal privacy.

The Justice Department task force instead has proposed a series of changes in the law to deal with the problem of criminal use of false identification, illegal immigration and Social Security fraud. One change would make it more difficult to obtain a false birth certificate,

The concept of an internal passport has been viewed by some as the most effective means of cutting down the problem. But Asst. Atty. Gen Richard Thornburgh said Monday: "That type of solution has 1984 overtones" as a threat against personal privacy.

The panel recommended establishment of minimum federal standards to tighten the application procedures for birth certificates and drivers' licenses, and interstate procedures for matching birth and death certificates so dead persons' names cannot be assumed by criminals.

"There are an awful lot of dead people walking around committing crimes," said Thornburgh, whose criminal division sponsored the study."The crime breeder document is the birth record," he said.

Thornburgh put the cost of the false identity phenomenon at $20 billion annually, a figure he said was conservative.

That includes $12 billion a year in federal and local tax burdens for illegal immigrants, $3 billion in check, credit card and other business fraud and $1 billion for drugs smuggled through false identification. Welfare, food stamp and Social Security abuses, and the extra law enforcement expenses necessary to catch fugitives using false identification account for the remainder.

In rejecting calls from some government officials for a national ID, the committee also suggested:

—State laws requiring identity verification before any person arrested can be released on bond;

—Tighter, uniform standards for identification of welfare and Social Security applicants, and the direct deposit of benefit checks to the recipient's bank account, where practical.

—To prevent business crimes, the use of electronic funds transfer systems instead of exchanging papers susceptible to forgery and counterfeiting.

One man mail service to federal judge

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — The case of a Pittsburg, Kan., man charged with infringing on the postal service by delivering first class mail has been taken under consideration by a federal judge.

Robert L. Lundblad, attorney for Robert E. Black, argued Monday before Judge Earl E. O'Connor that the U.S. Constitution gives Congress no power to make the U.S. Postal System a monopoly.

"If a small operator can do it efficiently and cheaper he should be allowed to, and no constitutional authority prevents him from doing it," Lunblad said.

He had moved for a dismissal of the charges against Black, the owner of a private mail service in southeast Kansas, on the basis that the private express statutes, under which Black is charged, are unconstitutional. Black was arraigned on the charges last month.

Lunblad had also said that the U.S. Postal Service may be abridging the First Amendment guarantee of freedom of speech because the price of first class mail was restricting the ability of U.S citizens to communicate.

Free enterprise would lead to more productivity and efficiency and lower prices, Lunblad said, disputing charges that competition would destroy the postal system.

Black's company, Alternate Systems, Inc., started delivering letters in Pittsburg and Frontenac, Kan., March 9 for about half the normal postage rates.

Black was charged with a misdemeanor under the private express statutes which make it illegal to establish a private service to transport mail over regular postal routes or between locations where mail is carried by the postal service.

Albert also said the charge against Howe would bring some discredit upon Congress if it is true. However, if it is false, it could boomerang and bring Howe sympathy, Albert said.

The Washington Post reported today that the National Park Service, on orders of then-Director George Hartzog, rigged a power line to provide free electricity to Gray's houseboat, docked at the Columbia Marina owned by the park service.

Special electric lines were run into the boat in 1971, the newspaper said. At that time, Gray was shepherding through Congress legislation to appropriate additional federal money the park service needed to complete construction of its National Visitor Center.

Neither Gray nor Hartzog could be reached for comment on the report.

Mrs. Gardner said Monday night that for two months this year she worked halftime for Young, but was paid a fulltime, $26,000-a-year salary and continued submitting to his sexual advances.

Young has denied the allegation but declined to say whether he had a sexual relationship with her. Joseph Prendergast, his administrative assistant, said Young is not planning to resign.

Gray has denied arranging a sexual encounter between Miss Ray and Gravel. Gravel called the allegations "patently ridiculous" and repeated that he has "no recollection of having met" Miss Ray.

Doctor's Hospital presents massive expansion plan

POPLAR BLUFF— Officials at Doctors Hospital Saturday presented a plan for a multi-million dollar expansion and renovation of the local 227-bed facility to a team of top level executives for the firms that own and manage the hospital.

The team of executives, from the Community Hospital Association, a non-profit corporation that owns Doctors Hospital, and Hospital Affiliates Inc., the health care consulting group that manages the hospital, was in Poplar Bluff for its annual board meeting.

Hospital administrator James Crews presented the group with a plan involving expenditures calculated to run in the vicinity of $6 million to $8 million dollars.

The plan, presented by Crews, by board members Dr. George Ladyman, David Watson, and Don Hamm and others, includes construction of several additions to the existing physical plant at the hospital. The new facilities, according to Crews, in some cases will replace existing, outmoded ones, and in other cases will open new services in the hospital.

They include the construction of a new surgical suite, construction of a new dual coronary care-intensive care unit, a new obstetrical and delivery suite and a new pediatric service.

Other additions planned include a new urology service, renovation and addition of space for up to 40 beds, and addition of up to seven new doctors.

Two new MD's have been contracted and will join the Doctors Hospital-Kneibert Clinic staff next month. They are a family practice specialist and an internist.

Crews said the management firm, Hospital Affiliates, is seeking an orthopedic surgeon, another urologist, a dermatologist, another family practitioner, and an eye, nose and throat specialist.

Ancillary services also will be expanded or relocated if the new plan is approved. Crews said dietary services and central supply will grow. Emergency services will be "significantly expanded" and the laboratory space will be doubled, the hospital administrator said. New, automated equipment will be installed in the lab, Crews said.

One of the most innovative elements of the plan presented to the executives is the additon of a psychiatric service to Doctors Hospital. The area served by the hospital currently has little psychiatric help.

"We are working toward becoming a regional medical center," Crews said, "and in doing so, we have to expand our services to provide those things a medical center does."

Crews said his impression after the meeting with the Hospital Affiliates Inc. and Community Hospital Association officials was the plan had been received favorably.

The administrator added he expects to receive the recommendations of the two groups in the near future.

All hospital expansion, however, will be predicated on approval by the Comprehensive Health Planning Agency or the Health Systems Agency, whichever of the two governmental health agencies is operative when the plans are finalized.

Crews said he expects the planning and approval stage of the plans to be completed within about six months. Construction, he said, would take a minimum of 18 to 24 months.

The representatives in Poplar Bluff for the meeting over the weekend included Hospital Affiliates Inc. President Jack Anderson, Dr. Gene Richardson, president of the Community Hospital Association, Neil Johnson and Jasper Wood, also of the association, and two vice-presidents of Hospital Affiliates Inc., Joseph Hutts and Roger Panther.
